Not Too Much Thrift
Lenin Poisoned?
Temperamental Blondes
More Wage Cutting

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1921.

The Governor of the State of New York has set aside the week of January 17 as "Thrift Week," in memory of Benjamin Franklin, born January 18, two hundred and fifteen years ago.

One of a poor family of seventeen children, of whom he was the fifteenth, Franklin naturally had thrift impressed upon him. The facts of his case ought to interest advocates of "birth control." It would have been a sad thing for the United States had Franklin's mother decided to stop with her fourteenth child. This nation would have lost some excellent advice from Poor Richard and a first-class worker for freedom.

Much amplification of Shakespeare's "neither a borrower nor a lender be" was Franklin's solemn advice. Thrift weeks are named after him and he is praised. But what would happen if each man decided to be "neither a borrower nor a lender," and if every man decided to make saving his chief business?

Stores would close, industries would die out, and we should go back to the day when each had something hidden and nobody had much.

Personal thrift is a very good thing for the individual. Universal thrift would be a calamity.

The big thing about Franklin was not his saving of a little money or his wise advice about it, but his brain, that, in the word of Mirabeau, "to the advantage of mankind, compassing in his mind the heavens and the earth, was able to restrain alike thunderbolts and tyrants."

The man who will show this government and this nation how to spend money to solve the problem of unemployment will do a great deal more than any thrift teacher.

The Jewish News Bureau, usually well-informed, says Lenin is seriously ill, and three German specialists have been summoned from Berlin to look after him. They tried shooting Lenin two or three times without success, although they hit him once. This attack might mean poison. Many powerful men have died of poison in Russia.

If the three German specialists cure Lenin, what will he do for them, besides giving them some of the confiscated Romanoff gold?

When Empress Catherine was vaccinated long ago, she showed her gratitude by making the little boy from whose arm her supply of vaccine was taken "Duke of Smallpox."

Dr. Augustine of Chicago, president of the Optometric Association, says that "temperamental blondes" can be soothed by dark glasses. Our climate excites them, says the doctor, and makes them wild.

A more practical suggestion would be "give the temperamental blonde or brunette some work that would really interest her." What men foolishly call a "temperamental woman" is simply an imitation of a driving wheel whirling around without any belt fastened to it and nothing to pull. Men keep women idle, then blame them for being wild. Keep a good horse idle and he'll kick down his stall.

That Catherine of Russia, as a young German princess, was a temperamental blonde. When she was harnessed as empress to the Russian machine, she was a wonderfully good worker, in spite of her Poniatowski and other slips.

The Boxing Commission of Massachusetts forbids wearing the American flag as part of the costume of prize fighters. That is a step in the right direction. An American flag stained with the blood of a prize fighter is stained with the wrong kind of blood. The next step should be to stop prize fighting.

It might be worth while for President Wilson to ask why his subordinates have allowed a negro prize fighter, Johnson, to be made a hero in a Federal prison, "entertaining" the convicts with his boxing exhibitions and sending them from prison convinced that the United States itself admired the half civilized brute that can knock another unconscious.

There is a movement in Germany "to destroy the republic and restore the government by the Hohenzollern party." Those that know little think this is "a very serious menace to Germany." A similar organization, seeking to bring back some of the assorted French "devine rights," has been an excellent thing for France. The feeble menace of extinct royalty, not powerful enough to do any harm, is sufficiently powerful to make republicans work together and remember what they have escaped.

More cutting of wages, 22½ per cent, by the great woolen company employing tens of thousands of men, 20 per cent. in an iron works, and so on. The public for the time has stopped buying. Lower and lower prices are offered as bait, and the wage cuts probably will go on. They are not as bad as the lack of work, constantly becoming more acute. One of the ablest and best-known financiers in the United States said two days ago: "We shall have bread lines and bread riots, and something will be done, TOO LATE, as usual."

BRITISH BATTLE SOVIETS

Fire Upon Rioters in Communist Uprisings in Indian Province

Special Cable to the International News Service and the London Daily Express.

Allahabad, India, Jan. 12.—Rioting in the united provinces of Agra and Oudh is spreading and many persons have been killed.

Six hundred arrests have been made in the district of Rae Bareli. A trainload of armed police has been rushed to the scene, and two companies of troops from Lucknow have also been dispatched.

Three hundred civilians tried to storm the jail at Rae Bareli. The troops fired, killing three and wounding seven.

The police fired upon a mob attacking the Pursatganj bazar, killing four.

An urgent call has been sent out by the Sultan of Pur asking for British assistance.

The disturbances began when the big land owners attempted to break up the soviets which had been established in numerous villages. The soviet movement has been growing and the membership is estimated at 100,000.

Agents of the Russian Bolsheviki have been active in India for some time spreading propaganda and establishing local soviets. One of the conditions of the proposed British trade compact with Moscow is that the Russians cease diseminating Red propaganda in India.

London, Jan. 12.—"The British authorities in India now have the situation at Rae Bareli in hand," said a Reuter dispatch from Bombay today.

CAR JUMPS TRACK; STORE GIRLS DELAYED

Many girl employes in downtown establishments were delayed on their way to work today when a Neponset car, inbound to Andrew square, jumped the tracks at Dorchester avenue and Savin Hill. In crossing intersecting tracks the rear trucks of the car left the rails. The accident occurred at 8:21 a. m. and held up traffic in that section for fifteen minutes.

FRENCH AID FOR WRANGEL TO CEASE FEBRUARY 1

Constantinople, Jan. 12. — General Baron Wrangel, former leader of the anti-Bolsheviki in Southern Russia, was officially advised by the French today that French assistance to the Russians will cease February 1.

HOVLAND IN, WEEK OVERDUE

The Norwegian steamship Hovland arrived in port from West Hatlepool in ballast, a week overdue. She encountered head gales nearly all the way over and, being in light trim, she rolled in the seas like an empty cask.

CALDER ASKS U. S. CONTROL OF COAL

Washington, Jan. 12.—A bill providing for government regulation of the country's coal industry was introduced today by Senator Calder, chairman of the Senate Committee on Reconstruction and Production investigating coal profiteering.

LEYGUES CABINET OVERTURNED IN FRANCE

Paris, aJn. 12.—The government of Premier Leygues was overturned in the Chamber of Deputies this afternoon by a vote of 463 to 125 against postpoing interpellations of the government's general policy. It has been reported for weeks the Cabinet would be forced from office.

SEIZE 45 QUARTS OF WHISKEY; MAN HELD

Joseph Boardman of Tufts street, Somerville, was arrested today by Somerville police when a raid uncovered forty-five quarts of whiskey at his home. In Somerville Court a charge of keeping and exposing liquor for sale was continued until January 25.

Delivers Bay State's Vote

Governor Cox, wearing latest derby, is photographed handing to Frank W. Stearns the Bay State's electoral votes, all for Harding, which the Boston merchant will deliver in Washington.

Frank W. Stearns, Boston merchant, left for Washington this afternoon with a little black bag containing Massachusetts' eighteen electoral votes for Senator Harding and Mr. Stearns' intimate friend, Vice-President-elect Calvin Coolidge.

Mr. Stearns was greeted at the State House by Governor Cox.

Later both faced the usual battery of cameras as he started on his trip to the Capitol City.

JUDGE LUMMUS PROMOTED

Lynn Justice Appointed to Superior Court to Succeed Judge Fox

Governor Channing H. Cox today sent to the Governor's Council his first cluster of plums, headed by the appointment of Henry T. Lummus of Lynn to the $10,000 position as a justice of the Superior Court.

Judge Lummus, since 1907 the justice of the District Court of Lynn, will fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Judge Jabez Fox of Cambridge. He is forty-four years old, a graduate of Boston University, has taught both in Boston University and Northeastern College, written many works on law and was a member of the Constitutional Convention, in which he opposed the initiative and referendum plan supported by the liberals and ratified by the people.

Governor Cox also sent in the nomination of Robert W. Hill of Salem as Associate Justice of the First District Court of Essex, to succeed the late Judge Edward C. Battis.

He renominated George A. Stickney of Beverly as Medical Examiner of the Seventh Essex District, Robert D. Hildreth of Westfield as Associate Medical Examiner of the Fourth Hampden District, Herbert L. Pratt of Hingham as clerk of the Second District Court of Plymouth and Dr. Lester H. Howard of Boston as State Director of Animal Industry.

BOY KNOCKED DOWN BY DOCTOR'S AUTO

Francis O'Neil, fifteen years old, of No. 70 Burrell street, Roxbury, was knocked down by an automobile owned and operated by Dr. Cylde Cowan of No. 25 Medfield street. He was sent to the City Hospital, where it was said he had sustained concussion of the brain.

STUDENT FINED IN COAT THEFT

Chelsea High Boy Charged With Taking Six Garments From Schoolmates

Josiah Razin, eighteen years old, a student at the Chelsea High School, was arraigned in the Chelsea Court today on six counts of larceny of overcoats from other students, and Harry Towl, a tailor, with a store on Bellingham square, was charged with receiving two of the coats, knowing them to be stolen.

On one count Razin was fined and paid $25, on another he was given a suspended sentence to the Concord Reformatory. He was given a year's probation on another and three charges were filed. Towl's case was continued until January 17, under $500 bonds.

Razin was arrested wearing one of the coats alleged to have been stolen. In all, six coats have been missed from the school coatroom, and it is alleged that Razin came to school on different days without an overcoat, and left wearing one belonging to a fellow student.

The matter of expelling Razin from the high school will be discussed at the next meeting of the School Board, it was announced by school authorities following his arrest.

TAUGHT HER TO SMOKE, THEN BEAT HER, SHE SAYS

Her husband first taught her to smoke cigarettes and then attacked her because she smoked them, according to Mrs. Helen G. Chiocchio today in Charlestown Court, where her husband Peter was charged with assault and battery. Chiocchio lives on Frankfort street, East Boston, and his wife on Chelsea street, Charlestown. She told Judge Sullivan her husband called at the Charlestown address and that after he had struck her she threw a vase at him. Chiocchio appealed a three-months sentence.

THREE MORE ARRESTS IN ALLEGED GROCERY THEFT

Daniel A. Roach, twenty-two years old, of Bartlett street, Charlestown, and Robert J. Wilkins, fifty-four years old, of Elm street, Everett, arrested a few days ago with eleven others in connection with alleged larceny of $250,000 worth of goods from the H. A. Johnson Co., Inc., No. 221 State street, were rearrested today on Superior Court warrants for conspiracy to steal. Charles Stampis, twenty-five years old, of Appleton street, was also arrested, charged with three counts of receiving stolen property.

SALEM FAMILY ROUTED BY EARLY MORNING FIRE

Salem, Jan. 12. — Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Mosette and their seven children were driven into the street in their nightclothing early today, by a fire that started in the kitchen of their apartment at No. 25 Warren street. The smoke was so dense that several of the children were in danger of suffocation before their parents could get them to safety. The damage was slight, and the fire easily extinguished.

TO PROBE AIRMEN'S FIGHT

Daniels Demands Facts About FarrellHinton Row Over Balloon Adventure

Washington, Jan. 12.—Formal inquiry into the fist fight between Lieutenant Farrell and Lieutenant Hinton, the naval balloonists, who have just escaped from the wilds of northern Canada, will be made by the commandant of the naval air station at Rockaway Point, according to intimations from Secretary Daniels today.

It was also freely predicted today that other witnesses, besides the officers involved, would be called in an effort to bare the manner in which the letters from Lieutenant Hinton to his wife reached the newspapers.

Secretary Daniels declared today that he could not and would not make any decision until he had received the full formal report on the affair from the commandant of the Rockaway Air Station.

The Secretary of the Navy, however, did not hesitate to characterize the fracas between the two airmen, as "most regrettable."

"It is to be regretted that the navy, after doing work that challenges the admiration of the whole world in a number of historic instances, has its glory dimmed by personal differences and sometimes by petty personal jealousies and bitter feelings," the secretary said.

"The glorious record of the Spanish War was clouded by the course of inquiry and the jealousies that fol-

Hultman Exposes Coal Profiteers

State Fuel Administrator Eugene C. Hultman today declared that retail dealers are charging exprbitant prices for coal in sixty cities and towns.

He published a list of the places, with a letter of instructions to local fuel administrators to investigate the cases thoroughly with the assurance that prosecutions for profiteering will be made by the Federal Department of Justice.

The fair price for coal is $18 a ton, he said. He has found some places in which the dealers are charging $21 a ton. While these dealers have kept up their prices, sixteen communities within two weeks have reduced the retail prices $1 to $5 a ton.

Hultman said in his letter of instructions:

"Considering the present wholesale prices, and the large quantity of "company" coal being received in Massachusetts, I intend to carefully scrutinize all prices for domestic coal in excess of $18 a ton delivered to the consumer. Therefore, you are requested to investigate local charges made for coal in your community and furnish this office with a report concerning same, including the retail prices. This information is desired in order that there may be no unnecessary delay in taking proper action where unjust prices are being charged.

"My office will assist you in all ways possible. I am ready to investigate cost of delivery and profits of retail dealers where necessary. You will recognize that many dealers are trying to meet the situation in a public-spirited way, and such dealers should not be harassed.

"Under the Massachusetts statutes, prosecution for unreasonable charges can only be made for conspiracy, while extortion or profiteering under the Lever Act is a criminal offence, and prosecution is brought by the federal attorney-general. I am assured of the active co-operation in this work by both the attorney-general of Massachusetts and the federal Department of Justice.

"For your information, I am sending you under separate cover a copy of my report to the Legislature, which will furnish you with general information relative to the anthracite coal situation."

Lawyer Calls Nott's Widow 'a Vampire'

Bridgeport, Ct., Jan. 12.—Mrs. Ethel Nott was today denounced as a "vampire" by Attorney William H. Comley in summing up for his client, Elwood B. Wade, who is on trial on the charge of murdering Mrs. Nott's husband, George E. Nott.

If Attorney Homer S. Cummings, counsel for the State, finishes his argument in time for Judge Hinman to make his charge this afternoon, the case will go to the jury late today.

Attorney Comley claimed Wade was mentally deficient and "a tool" in the hands of Mrs. Nott.

Attorney Comley called the attention of the jury to the fact that Wade's visits to the Nott home were not made clandestinely, but in the day time, and even on Sunday when the neighbors had opportunity to see him.

On the Sunday of the murder Wade visited the Nott home in broad daylight, Comley said, showing that he lacked normal caution. These facts, he argued, all reflected the mental shortcomings of the accused.

"Gentlemen of the jury," added Attorney Comley, "a human life is at stake here. It may not be a valuable one as we look at it, but such a view is due to our imperfect understanding of the facts."

Attorney Comley attacked the testimony of several of the leading State witnesses, especially that of "Ho"

CONFERS WITH O'CALLAGHAN

Labor Secretary Wilson Meets Cork Mayor and Counsel; Deportation Deferred

By International News Service.

Washington, Jan. 12.—The State Department has received no reply from the Labor Department to its request that Daniel O'Callaghan, Lord Mayor of Cork, who arrived in this country as a stowaway, be deported, Acting Secretary of State Davis said today.

The State Department announced that it had made its recommendations and would now await action. At the Labor Department it was said there was no change in the case.

The White House had no information as to the action the President might take in the case.

O'Callaghan and his counsel were here today and planned for a conference late in the day with Secretary of Labor Wilson. Meantime, further action on deportation is deferred.

QUINCY MAYOR BANS CITY HALL SMOKING

Gloom descended over Quincy City Hall today when City Messenger Harry W. Pirell stalked solemnly through the various departments with a request of Mayor William A. Bradford that all city employes immediately discontinue smoking while in the building. The Mayor, who does not smoke himself, declared that women entering the building on business are forced to move through a "veritable smoke barrage," and that smoking must stop.

LEADER OF AUTO THIEVES JAILED

Blevins, Go-Between for Buckley, Is Sent Away for 3½ Years

Ernest Blevins, twenty-four years old, of Cambridge, who had been a fugitive from justice since September, 1919, and who was one of the leaders of the gang of auto thieves that had a rendezvous in Billerica woods, was sentenced by Judge Cox today in Middlesex Superior Court to State prison for from two and a half to three and a half years.

Blevins was the "go-between" in recruiting young men to steal automobiles for the chief of the gang, John J. Buckley, who is serving a long term in State Prison. There were twenty-four indictments against Blevins when he jumped his $5,000 bail a year ago last Fall. Blevins surrendered himself yesterday.

He was bitterly arraigned by Special Prosecutor George S. Harvey and Attorney Henry F. Hurlburt. Attorney Harvey told Judge Cox that he thought Blevins should be punished severely because of his pernicious activities.

Harvey said boys of tender years were induced to steal cars and that many high grade machines were stripped and disguised in Billerica woods. He said Blevins had caused the county much trouble and expense. He said Blevins was Buckley's principal lieutenant.

BANK MESSENGER IS ROBBED OF $28,000

Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 12.—A bank messenger was assaulted and robbed by two men of a satchel containing $20,000 in cash and $8,000 in checks in the entrance to the Produce Exchange Bank here.

ACCUSED OF USING STOLEN CHECK

Holyoke Student Arrested by Boston Police After Army Store Transaction

William H. McLean, twenty-one years old, junior at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, was arrested today at that institution in Cambridge by Boston police, charged with forging, uttering and larceny from a fellow-student.

According to the police, McLean, who lives on Pine street, Holyoke, rifled an institute mail box of a check for $75.50 made out to William J. Schaffer of Port Chester, N. Y.

McLean is alleged to have confessed to forging an endorsement and using the check at an army supply store at No. 88 Massachusetts avenue, Back Bay.

The police say several similar complaints will be lodged against the young man, who is also wanted by the Cambridge authorities.

In Municipal Court today he waived examination and was held in $1,000 for the Grand Jury.

Special Officer McNab and Officer Lowney of the Back Bay police station went to Cambridge, accompanied by Herbert Connor, proprietor of the army supply store. McLean was called from a classroom, after permission had been obtained from the Institute officials, and placed under arrest.

At first he pleaded ignorance of the entire matter, the police say, but they allege he later confessed. He is said to have admitted that he purchased a coat for $33.50, tendering the check in payment, and receiving the change.

The police then visited McLean's room, where they claim to have found the coat in question, which the young man at first claimed he bought from another student.

The police allege that young McLean has cashed a number of checks, including several which were abstracted from mail boxes and on which endorsements were forged.

SENATE PASSES MUSCLE SHOALS NITROGEN BILL

Washington, Jan. 12.—The Senate today passed the Wadsworth amendment to the nitrate bill providing for the financing of the operation of the fixed nitrogen plant at Muscle Shoals by a vote of 34 to 32. The Lenroot amendment relieving the government from responsibility of the debts of the corporation was also passed.

TORTURES OF THREE LOST BALLOONISTS DESCRIBED BY KLOOR

DRANK WATER FROM HOLES DUG BY MOOSE HOOFS

By AGAPIT CLERMONT

(Copyright, 1921, by Star Company and Universal Service.)

Mattice, Ont., Jan. 12.—The first complete account of the wild adventures of the three American aviators, Lieutenants Kloor, Farrell and Hinton, was given to me last Sunday afternoon, fifty miles out on the Missinabi River trail, while the rescued aeronauts were seated on the floor of an Indian cabin.

Lieutenant Kloor, commander of the balloon party, told the story from the take-off at Rockaway Point to the moment of our meeting. With his companions at intervals nodding assent, he gave this vivid account of their record-breaking trip:

"We left Rockaway at 1 p. m., December 13. While at the high altitude of 5,000 feet a storm came up, making it unsafe to land.

"We flew directly over New York that night. When the storm hit us, we were above the storm, and could judge it by the speed of the clouds below. It was impracticable to land in such a wind for fear that the whole crew might be killed. We decided to fly all night.

Threw Stuff Overboard To Maintain Their Altitude

"Tuesday morning we were up about 6,000 feet and could not see any signs of civilization, only a barren area of trees. We thought it best to stick it out while the ballast lasted and to land only when we had to. During the day we encountered severe snow storms, expended all our land ballast, and got together all equipment available for emergency ballast.

"We threw over the drag rope, the carpet, the seats, the basket and lines, lunch basket, thermos kettles, and were able to maintain our altitude. Occasionally, to conserve ballast, we would break the ball of the balloon by letting it hit trees and even the ground and letting it rebound into the air.

"The hydrogen was ten days old, had very poor lift. It required quite a bit of accurate judgment to maintain our altitude and conserve ballast at the same time.

"Messrs Farrell and Hinton say they will never forget those bounces and they were quite put up when we hit trees as that was quite a novelty to them, as they were seaplane men.

"At 10 o'clock Tuesday the sun came out and expanded the gas and helped to maintain our altitude. This was the first sun seen in twenty-four hours.

"About 1 o'clock we thought we saw a house amongst the never-ending forest and we heard plainly the barking of a dog, so we thought we had better land as this was a sign of civilization.

"My order was: 'Stand by with all available ballast; we will land. Hinton, your valve. Mr. Farrell, heave out your thermos bottle and suit case and when we first strike the trees you and I will pull the rip cord, bend your knees because we are quite a bit heavy, so that when we strike the ground we will not break our legs from the fall.

"A rather rough landing was made in two instalments amongst some tall spruce trees. The balloon deflated itself rapidly after being ripped. Not a scratch was experienced by anyone.

First Photograph of "Lost" Airmen

Here is the first and exclusive photograph of the American naval balloonists taken after they had staggered out of the Canadian wilderness in the wake of a friendly Indian into the Hudson Bay post at Moose Factory, Ontario. They had landed in the snow-packed forest sixteen miles south of the post, and wandered for days seeking a habitation. The photograph, brought to civilization by S. A. Bradbury, a clerk at the post, shows, left to right, J. L. Gaudet, the factor at the post; Lieutenant Louis A. Kloor, Jr., Lieutenant Walter Hinton and Lieutenant Stephen A. Farrell, whose regrettable attack on Lieutenant Hinton marred the accomplishment of the trio. The photograph shows Lieutenant Farrell to be the huskiest of the three and apparently capable of carrying out his boast that he could "lick" the other two. He was said to have been heavyweight champion of the Pacific fleet. Lieutenant Kloor, the smallest and youngest of the officers, was commander of the expedition, as he was the only balloon officer, the others being seaplane fliers who were his passengers.

Drank Water From Holes Moose Pawed Up

"There was no possible chance to get the balloon out of the brush, so we deserted it and mapped out a possible course in the direction from which the dog had barked, carrying with us flying suits and three carrier pigeons in a cage, which we thought might come in handy, as all the food had been eaten on the trip.

"We hit in a southwesterly direction, hoping to reach the stream by which the house seemed to have been located, and to follow the stream.

"We were almost sure to reach it that night. We were uncomfortably cold and wet since the night before, and our march was very slow. We were forced to build a fire.

"Lieutenant Hinton had only his regulation Summer uniform without any overcoat, as he had lost his flying suit by leaving it at a spot which could not be found later. Mr. Farrell and myself had on our flying suits, which were pretty well torn by nighttime. Mr. Farrell had on his underwear under his suit.

"As the underbrush was a tangle of shrub, we had to drink from holes where the moose had pawed up the snow.

Eat First carrier Pigeon for Breakfast

"We ate nothing that night, as we wanted to keep our provisions. We heard howls all that night and the two succeeding nights, and these were from wolves, as there were no dogs around.

"Wednesday morning before starting out we decided to have pigeon for breakfast. I read out loud the pigeons number from his leg ring and said:

"He is one of the good ones."

"Wringing his neck I cleaned and dressed him, and Lieutenant Hinton broiled it. We decided that Hinton and Lieutenant Farrell would have one half a breast apiece and I would have the remainder. Not considering it a fair division I gave each of the others a wing. We enjoyed the scanty meal, and I ate my share bones and all.

"Then we marched all day, Lieutenant Hinton leading the march and checking the course by the compass. I followed with all the provisions, viz: two carrier pigeons. We had one box of matches. Farrell brought up at the rear. Occasionally it was necessary to stop and warm ourselves and to gain new pep. We had to build our fires quickly because our feet would become numb immediately we stopped. Lieutenant Hinton was the official firemaker.

"We had to pick grass and put it next to our skin to dry it for priming the fire.

"We ate nothing that night and sat up near the fire, plotting and planning. A moose kept circling around our fire at some distance, calling without cease, and kept us on our nerve's end listening to his perpetual plaints. We wished we had a gun with us that night as we needed both meat and rest.

Stuns Timber Jack Snowbird With Stick

"Lieutenants Farrell and Hinton did not sleep, but I managed to get some sleep. The cold was intense beyond description. Thursday the sixteenth we started out. At noon we ate the second pigeon, dividing it up as for the first. To vary the menu we ate moss.

"To tantalize us we saw numerous partridge. They seemed quite tame, but our attempts to kill some with stones failed utterly. To do away with the pigeon cage, which weighed several pounds, I wrung the neck of the third bird and put it in the pocket of my flying suit.

A timber Jack snowbird flew within range and I saw the vision of a meal. I hit him with a stick, stunning him but he flew up before I got to him.

"Eventually I fell into a dead sleep, notwithstanding the intense cold and the desperate spirits we were in. Lieutenant Farrell was lying on his back and he happened to notice the two directing stars of the big dipper.

One Pigeon Left to Eat on Fourth Day

"He got up and looked for the North star, which appeared almost overhead. He called Lieutenant Hinton and asked him to look how high the North star was. They both began to check with their arms to get the latitude.

"Thus, weak, hungry, discouraged and ragged, with the added knowledge of being so far North, our spirits lowered still more. We had one pigeon left to face our fourth day of trekking through the wilderness. This was Friday the 17th.

"We came to a clearing about 11 o'clock and found that at this point the small creek emptied into a larger stream; but there was no hope in sight.

"We followed the tracks for about an hour again. Then Lieutenant Hinton spied a man on the opposite bank about two miles away, and he and I started shouting at the top of our voices to attract his attention, as it meant our lives.

"I found to my dismay that he was an Indian. After shaking hands with him and offering him one of my few remaining cigarettes, which he gladly accepted, I tried to explain to him in what condition we were. He shook his head and did not seem to understand.

Eroke Fast on Indian Bread and Tea

"I asked him in French if he spoke French and also in German. He still shook his head and then, to my amazement he asked me in English if I spoke Indian. I had little trouble explaining that we wanted shelter and food.

"The Indian guided us to his cabin and his wife gave us Indian bread and tea, while he went to the post to notify the officials of the company.

"Soon Mr. Gaudet, manager of the Hudson Bay post, came to the cabin and brought us to his house, where he made us feel absolutely at home. There we met Mr. Rackham, district manager of the Hudson's Bay Company, who took us in charge till we were able to leave for Mattice on January 8.

"I sent out the message announcing our safe arrival at Moose by Mr. Bradbury, one of the post's clerks, who left on December 23.

"We have now traveled since December 28 over a trail of slush and snow, between two endless rows of Christmas trees. We had to make camp in a tent every night and take shifts keeping up the fire. Taking into account the bad state of the trail we made fairly good progress, although we might say the going was very rough.

lowed it, and even in the late World War, where the navy won renown, it was not free from this unfortunate public display of differences.

"In this case where these young men have endured great hardships and set new standards of endurance and bravery, it is to be deplored that there should have been personal conflict or altercation."

Secretary Daniels failed to show any great displeasure over the action of Lieutenant Farrell, and in navy circles a great deal of unofficial sympathy was openly expressed for his course.

SENATOR EDGE SOUNDS HIGH TARIFF WARNING

Washington, Jan. 12.—A warning that prohibitive tariff duties may result in foreign countries adopting retaliatory methods in their commercial dealings with this country was uttered in the Senate today by Senator Edge. "In considering any tariff legislation, even so-called emergency tariff measures it is imperative Congress view the problem from the greatly changed trade conditions brought about by the war," Edge said.

$20,000 WILLED MALDEN 'Y. W. C. A.'--NON-EXISTENT

By the will of Mrs. Nancy Faulkner of Everett street, Malden, allowed by Judge White in the Middlesex Probate Court today, "The Malden Young Women's Christian Association," an organization that never existed, is given $20,000 and the residue from other trust bequests, estimated at another $30,000. Judge White decided the $20,000 should be invested until other heirs die and the whole estate can be settled.

Mrs. Farrell Defends Her Husband

New York, Jan. 12.—Lieutenant Stephen A. Farrell's attack upon Lieutenant Walter Hinton at Mattice was defended today by Mrs. Anna L. Farrell, wife of the aeronaut.

"Mr. Farrell was defending his character when he struck Mr. Hinton and I think he was right" said Mrs. Farrell.

'MAIL EARLY' IS POSTAL PLEA

Business Men Asked to Aid in Relieving Late-Day Letter Congestion

A nation-wide campaign to induce postal patrons to get mail into the postoffices early in the day has been started by the National Federation of Post Office Clerks. In a statement issued by officials of the clerks' organization it is claimed that 75 per cent. of all mail handled does not get the clerks until after 5 p. m.

The almost universal practice among business men of delaying the signing of letters until late in the day results in congestion at the postoffices, which operates to the disadvantage of the public and imposes much unnecessary night work upon the clerks.

Gilbert E. Hyatt and Thomas F. Flaherty, officials of the National Federation of Postoffice Clerks, who are in charge of the campaign at the Washington headquarters of the organization, said:

"If circular matter and relatively unimportant mail is sent to the offices early in the day it will clear the way for the speedier handling of the more important mail in the evening. The service handles a million and a half [illegible] every hour. Each letter is handled on an average of eight times, which makes the equivalent of twelve million letters every hour of the day and night.

CALLS MRS. NOTT 'A VAMPIRE'

Wade's Counsel Declares He Was Completely Dominated By Slain Man's Widow

Rooney, whom he alluded to as "the lowbrow with the bestial face."

"Wade was completely at the mercy of this vampire," charged Attorney Comley. It was she who stung him into action. She forced him to visit her home. She caused him to believe that her husband was cruel to her. Wade did not appreciate that he was doing wrong in going to the Nott home.

"JUST A POOR FOOL."

"He was just the poor fool who was caught in this wretched woman's snare. He did not comprehend what he was doing. Then after the killing when he went to his home he acted like an ostrich trying to hide. He went to the very place where he would be first sought. This shows the mentality of the man."

Comley branded as false Rooney's story that he (Rooney) and Wade had gone to the Nott home with a hatchet and lay in ambush to kill Nott. He also branded as false the story of Wade's co-defendant, John Edward Johnston, who testified that he and Wade had on another occasion gone to the Nott home with a shot gun to slay Nott.

Attorney Comley said if such a version as Johnston told were true the State should have produced the gun and the person whom Johnston claimed loaned it to them.

Johnston will be tried for murder after Wade, and then Mrs. Nott will be tried. The fact that Mrs. Nott turned State's evidence has not aided her, counsel for the State claim.

MOUNTED BAY STATE PATROL URGED IN WAR ON AUTO CROOKS

FORCE OF 140 ASKED FOR TASK

Stevens and Foote Want Men Ready for Any Part of Massachusetts

Establishment of a State constabulary—a mobile force of 140 men equipped with horses and fast motorcycles, with a roving commission to patrol the State—was recommended to the Legislature in a report filed today by Adjutant-General Jesse F. Stevens and Colonel Alfred F. Foote, Commissioner of Public Safety.

Such a constabulary would afford protection to the rural communities from the crimes which are planned in the cities and committed by auto bandits and would help to free the road from the menace of the reckless and drunken auto drivers, who have left an amazing trail of dead and injured in their path, the report said.

OPPOSED BY LABOR.

The recommendations make no mention of labor and strikes, but they will be bitterly opposed by organized labor on the ground that State constabularies have often been used to put down strikes, regardless of the justice of the strike.

"The development of the use of the automobile by the criminally-inclined element," says the report, "has greatly extended their sphere of operations. Because of the advantage offered by means of swift transportation, crimes that are planned in large cities may now be executed in distant towns, and, the offence being committed, flight accomplished with excellent chances of avoiding detection and apprehension.

"The bandit type of holdup man, the safe blower, the poultry thief, the garden despoiler, the automobile thief and the perpetrator of burglaries at Summer camps and cottages are now enabled to come from distant points to carry out their designs, and leave the scene of the crime without detection.

PATROL OF HIGHWAYS.

"The unlawful use of the automobile has thus developed a condition that can only be coped with successfully by a [illegible] of the State highways, carried out by an efficient force of men, specially trained for the purpose.

"The patrol of the State highways by a trained motorized force would be of incalculable value in protecting pedestrians, law-abiding motorists and the users of horse-drawn vehicles, from intoxicated and reckless drivers, and in preventing the unlawful use of the highways and reducing the alarming number of fatal accidents now occurring.

"This force should be organized on a semi-military basis for the purpose of discipline, training and administration, and should be distributed over the State in small groups for patrol duty, but capable of being quickly mobilized into larger units in an emergency.

"The force should consist of sufficient numbers to adequately patrol the country districts of the State and particularly the main arteries of automobile travel. Our excellent system of State roads offers facilities for such a patrol service, effective administration of which might best be secured by division of the State into zones within which an adequate force should be maintained in barracks.

"Motorcycle transportation should be provided for the patrol force and a sufficient number of horses maintained to mount 50 per cent. of the total force for training purposes."

With the report was filed a bill providing that, whenever the Governor shall deem it necessary, he may authorize the Commissioner of Public Safety to organize the force.

Service in the contemplated police organization would be on the basis of enlistment for a three-year period.

N. Y. Society Again Plans to Migrate---To East Side

Vanderbilt's former residence at Fifth avenue and Fifty-second street, and at right, the Sutton place row of East Side houses that she has purchased to combine in one big mansion.

New York, Jan. 12.—Menaced by the steady northward march of office building and apartment house, exclusive Fifth avenue, near Central park, is planning to move.

Already some of the leaders of the ultra elite have announced their intention of vacating the homes, which for a generation have been famous throughout the country, and are seeking sites secure from the invasion of business and the mob.

Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Mrs Stephen Olin and others are leading the procession from the district near Central Park to the dingy looking half forgotten section overlooking the East River

Mrs. Vanderbilt, recently widowed, has announced that she has sold her home at Fifth avenue and Fifty-second street, and has purchased a row of houses on Sutton Place, east of Avenue A.

HISTORY REPEATS.

In this move history is repeating itself. Ever since the grandchildren of Peter Stuyvesant found it no longer possible to live in the family mansion at the end of the Bouwerie and moved out of the city to the neighborhood of what is now Washington square, society in Gotham has been forced to migrate from time to time.

Old Greenwich Village was once the fashionable section. Then it in turn fell from grace and passed into obscurity from which the so-called Bohemians snatched it to give it an unenviable notoriety.

Murray Hill and the district around about them became the centre of all that was exclusive, and from Civil War times on to the late seventies held its rule. Indeed, it still contains some of the old family residences, notably that of John Pierpont Morgan on Madison avenue in the thirties.

But long ago Murray Hill lost its claim to leadership, and the mantle it let fall was snatched up by Fifth avenue north of Fifty-ninth street.

"GOING BACK."

And now the fashionables are moving again. This time they are going backward, for in the early days of the last century the district to which they are moving, was the site of a little colony of wealthy merchants and professional men.

Sutton Place, hardly two blocks long, fronts upon the East River facing the southern end of Blackwell's Island and below the sweeping span of the Queensboro Bridge.

For years the district has been forgotten and neglected, but there is nothing prettier in all Manhattan than the so-called East River Park, when the lights come up at night and the steady procession of shipping moves up and down the East River.

It is true that already the factory has intruded itself into this locality, but report says that the rich men and women who are planning to make their homes there, will oust them speedily, and plan to change the whole district to suit themselves.

The row of houses on Sutton Place which Mrs. Vanderbilt has purchased is to be renovated and made into one big mansion.

BRITISH DEBT UP TO HARDING CABINET

Washington, Jan. 12.—The Harding Cabinet may confront the British debt as one of its first problems. A sudden turn in the negotiations today, forecasting unexpected delays in the meeting between English and American financial representatives, virtually will leave the major part of adjusting the big $5,000,000,000 debt due the United States up to President-elect Harding. The prospect today was that the discussions once they begin cannot be concluded for several weeks.

SEEK MUTILATOR OF HORSES IN CHELSEA

Chelsea police today are investigating a complaint made by Stephen Voiero of No. 16 Beacon street, Chelsea, that on two occasions horses owned by him and stabled at No. 36 Pembroke street have been mutilated. Large strips of skin and flesh were cut from the animals' backs. The police believe that a person of deranged mind is responsible.

BRIGHTON MEN FINED $50 EACH IN RUM CASE

Peter Rowsky and Dominick Jordan, both of Lincoln street, Brighton, were arraigned in Brighton District Court today, charged with violation of the liquor law. They were fined $50 each by Judge Connolly, who suspended sentence to give them time to pay.

BARS BATHING SUITS ON WAITRESSES

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 12.—District Attorney Zabel called a halt on a beach show at which two score waitresses, attired in bathing suits, served refreshments to delegates attending the National Shoe Retailers' Association convention. Some of the delegates objected to the display of limbs, it is said.

New Spirit to Rule Hub, Says Getchell

Any dangers from old-school conservatism which may have existed, will be dissipated by the earnestness, enthusiasm and high endeavor of the younger generation, according to Everett L. Getchell, secretary of the Boston University School of Business Administration.

Mr. Getchell made this statement in reply to the charge of Dr. Paul Revere Frothingham, that Boston is the "most conservative city in the most conservative section of the country." The reply follows:

By EVERETT L. GETCHELL.

I am not at all depressed by this so-called and indeed very apparent Boston conservatism—apparent in certain quarters of the city. Of course, I see little of it here in our school.

"Again I have the greatest faith in all that Dr. Frothingham says. He is a thinker. whose opinions have the greatest weight. But, perhaps, this old school conservatism of which he speaks, may pass, with the blessed younger generation, such as we are educating here at Boston University. Our students here are so liberal in their views, so wide awake, so eagerly ahead of the times, in many ways, that I am not so frightened by the bogy of conservatism, as I would otherwise be.

"In a very few years these young people will have in their enthusiastic hands the shaping of the destines of the city, and then much of the old conservatism will pass.

"There was a time, just a little while ago, when I did fear a bit, perhaps. That was when so many of our students returned from the war. They, some of them, seemed to bring back with them the radicalism of old world fanatics; others, discouraged, seemed, perhaps, a bit touched by the rust of stand pat Boston conservatism. But it does not take healthy young people long to develop from these mental phases into blooming enthusiasm, deep earnestness, high endeavor.

"Anyone who is afraid that the hidebound conservatism of older Boston will settle down upon our city for good and all, should just stand at the foot of the stairs, in our school, and watch the young people troop down, between periods. They would go away, fearing less; they would go away, fear dispelled.

"We know, as Dr. Frothingham points out, that the world is in the throes in many places. Business, some persons tell us, is bad. But we are not depressed; nothing of the spirit of the wearier Boston which says that, since these phenomena were not known in the times of the fathers, therefore they are very wrong, disturbs our students.

"These young people have come here for a business training, to fit themselves for careers in the best country of the world. The good sense of youth sees the supreme wisdom of regarding life and studies and the future as a great adventure, to which the end must, necessarily, be happy.

"That is why I would say to any one, alarmed by the older spirit of the older Boston—'don't fear. The youngsters are growing up. And wherever did you see a youngster who gave up before trying; wherever did you see a young man of new, young America, who was content to let well, or even ill, alone?

"Do not fear. The young man who yesterday fought our battles in France will tomorrow cause to grow, in the conservative places, the fine flower of his earnestness and his high enthusiasm. All is well with Boston yet. For the new spirit will soon be the portion of us all."

SEEK PAVLIS IN RHODE ISLAND

Greek Wanted for Slaying of Stoughton Woman May Be in Providence

Stoughton, Jan. 12.—Search for George M. Pavlis, suspected slayer of Mrs Bessie Price, shifted to Rhode Island today.

A man answering his description boarded a car for Taunton a short time after the pretty young wife and mother was shot to death in her home.

Stoughton police believe that Pavlis, accompanied by a young man friend, changed to a Providence car in Taunton and sought to lose himself in the underworld of the Rhode Island capital.

At the same time, on the off chance that the man who boarded the Taunton car was not Pavlis, the search was prosecuted today in Sharon, Norton, Easton, Brockton, Lynn and Boston.

The Providence police were notified and detectives watched all incoming electrics and searched the Greek colonies in Providence and East Providence but no trace of Pavlis was found, nor could the trail of any person passing through Providence, answering his description, be discovered.

TUBE COSTS HUB $8,082 IN YEAR

East Boston Tunnel Burden Shared Between City and Elevated

It cost the city of Boston $8,082 to rent the East Boston tunnel to the Boston Elevated last year.

That is the difference between what is received from the "L" and the annual interest and sinking fund requirements of the bonds issued to pay for the construction of the tunnel, according to Secretary J. Alfred Mitchell of the Sinking Fund Commissioners.

The city receives $123,036 from the "L" or three-eighths of 1 per cent. of its gross earnings. The city has to pay out in interest and sinking fund $131,118, hence the deficit of $8,082, which the city will have to make up in the 1921 tax levy.

There has been a deficit each year since the Legislature abolished the cent toll.

Bohan Indicted for Murder

New York, Jan. 12.—The Grand Jury indicted Jeremiah Bohan, former internal revenue agent, for murder in the first degree of "Monk" Eastman, ex-gangster and war hero. Bohan confessed to the murder, according to the police.

CUT SURTAXES, SAYS KAHN

N. Y. Banker Urges Increasing War Sinking Fund Only in Good Times

New York, Jan. 12.—Urging a reduction in income surtaxes and the trial on a conservative scale of the turnover tax on commodities, Otto H. Kahn, banker, financier and economist, was the chief speaker at a meeting of the New York Board of Trade and Transportation here today, held to discuss means of tax revision.

After warning his hearers against attempting to dodge their share of the financial responsibility incurred by the war, and declaring that "we must be sure that what changes in the tax laws we propose are not only economically wise and practical, but in accord with the modern conception of social decency and fairness," Mr. Kahn said:

"I believe that it is not necessary to set aside each year $300,000,000 as a sinking fund to amortize the war debt. I see no reason why that debt should be retired with undue rapidity. I think that when times are good and revenues abundant we should augment that fund liberally, but when, as at present, conditions are unsettled we should suspend it in whole or part."

Mr. Kahn also declared he was opposed to any plan for funding the floating debt of the nation because the market for government securities, already weak, would be further weakened by "pumping an additional issue of government bonds into an already oversupplied and reluctant market."

He sees no means at present for bringing the price of Liberty and Victory Bonds up to par, but believes that when conditions warrant such steps might be taken as would bring the war loans up to their original price of issue.

DEAN WARREN OBJECTS TO STUDENTS' ANSWERS

Dean William W. Warren of Boston University, speaking of the deeper life in his noon address in King's Chapel today, alluded to the answers which a number of students gave him when asked what they considered the most essential things in their lives. "One thought that living in Boston was essential, another that he was only sixteen years of age, and so on. Instead of touching the deep cardinal things in life, they allowed themselves to give such answers," he said.

HARDING WANTS EAST PORCH FOR CEREMONY

Marion, O., Jan. 12.—President-elect Harding today sent telegrams to Senator Knox and Edward B. McLean thanking them for meeting his wishes for the simplest form of inaugural ceremony. He suggested to Senator Knox that he would gladly have the simple ceremony on the East porch of the Capitol, provided that could be arranged without special preparations and the weather permits.

FARLEY PAPER STOCK AND FREIGHT CAR ARE BURNED

Farley, Jan. 12.—The 800-foot stock shed for the Farley Paper Company was razed by fire today. The shed was stocked with bristol board. A Boston & Maine freight car on a siding near the mill was burned. The loss was estimated at $15,000.

STRIKE THREAT AT LAWRENCE

Amalgamated Textile Workers Declare Woolen Mill Wage Cut Unjustifiable

Declaring the wage cut in the fifty-four mills of the American Woolen Company unjustified, the Lawrence Local of the Amalgamated Textile Workers of America today issued a statement threatening strike at the earliest favorable moment.

The Amalgamated Textile Workers are the "radical" element among the mill hands of Lawrence and other textile centres.

The organization grew out of the rebellion of foreign-born workers against the United Textile Workers and the American Federation of Labor during the Lawrence strike of 1919.

The United Textile Workers have already signified their intention of accepting the cut under protest, pending a return to normal business conditions.

WOOD IS CONDEMNED.

In a statement today from the Amalgamated officials President William M. Wood was bitterly condemned for his action in announcing a 22½ per cent. cut in wages.

"We recognize the re-declaration of war," ran the statement.

"The company and other companies evidently welcome a repetition of the pitched battles of 1912 and 1919. We shall resume the industrial struggle at the earliest opportunity."

Printed circulars were sent broadcast in Lawrence criticising President Wood, and declaring that "labor was crucified again."

"The cost of living has not gone down 22½ per cent.," declared these circulars.

"President Wood, in his talk about cutting down expenses, forgot to mention the $1,000,000 he gets annually in salaries and commissions from the American Woolen Company.

REFERS TO PROFITS.

"He likewise forgot to mention the 500 per cent. profit made legal by the decision of the courts that cloth is not clothing."

The statement was signed by Joseph Salerno, secretary of the Lawrence Local of the Amalgamated Textile Workers.

Officers of the local said they would, at the earliest opportunity, take up the fight with the woolen companies.

In view of this statement, much importance is being attached to the meeting of the officers and delegates of the New England conference of the Amalgamated Textile Workers in Amalgamated Hall in Lawrence Sunday night.

MILFORD DROWNING VICTIMS BURIED

Milford, Jan. 12.—Funeral services for the three young men who broke through the ice and drowned in Lake Winthrop last Sunday were held today. A military funeral, attended by members of the American Legion and M Company, 104th Infantry, attended a solemn high mass at St. Mary's Church for John McGinniss. A solemn high mass was celebrated for John Driscoll, and later in the day services were held at the home of Forrest Higgins, the third victim.

'Dead' Woman Revives Before Autopsy

Lawrence, Jan. 12.—Mrs. Catherine Ganley, sixty years old, was found in bed in a lodging house at No. 459 Essex street apparently dead from gas poisoning. An undertaker was called and the medical examiner came to view the body. The police were notified but on their arrival it was found that the woman was still alive. A lung motor was secured from the station and respiration was restored. Gas was found escaping from a jet in a room adjoining that which Mrs. Ganley had occupied. She was removed to the Lawrence General Hospital where it was said that she will live.

WIFE CAN'T QUIT GOOD HUSBAND

Supreme Court Reverses Decision of Probate Judge in Goldberg Case

Judge Flint of the Norfolk County Probate Court erred, according to a decision of the full bench of the Supreme Court, which sustains Judge Sisk of the Superior Court in reversing a finding of Judge Flint that Mrs. Ruth Goldberg was living apart from her husband, John Goldberg, for justifiable cause, and was entitled to separate maintenance.

The Goldbergs were married October 18, 1918, and went to Norwood to live. On November 5 Mrs. Goldberg went to a hospital, and on her return about two weeks later told her husband she could not longer live with him because of physical disabilities. Mrs. Goldberg thereupon left her husband went to live with her mother.

Judge Carroll, who wrote the opinion of the Supreme Court, says: "A wife is not justified in living apart from her husband and claiming separate support from him when the husband is without blame and the separation is not the result of ill treatment, misconduct or failure of marital duty on his part.

"There is nothing to indicate that by returning to his home she would be subjected to cruel treatment or abuse, and it could not be found on the agreed facts that by living with her husband her health would be impaired, or her physical or mental condition impaired.

"It does not follow that her husband would be guilty of conduct which would cause her injury, nor was there reasonable fear of danger to her physical health or safety from continuing to live with him, as to support a decree for separate maintenance.

"The contract of marriage is for life, and cannot be repudiated or terminated at the pleasure of the parties, but can only be dissolved by the State itself. It follows that, after fulfilment of the contract, marriage is a social institution or status, in which, because the foundation of the family and the domestic relations rest upon it, the Commonwealth has a deep interest to see that its integrity is not put in jeopardy, but maintained."

Chesterton's Novels "Penny-Dreadfuls"

"Novelist? I'm not a novelist; I'm a journalist. I've tried my hand at all sorts of tricks; but the most amazing piece of charlatanry I've ever committed is posing as a lecturer. I can't lecture you know; I've nothing to lecture about, and I've no voice for lecturing."

Thus Gilbert K. Chesterton deprecated his own gifts in a talk with a Boston American reporter on the occasion of his platform debut in this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Chesterton arrived at the Copley-Plaza for half a week's stay while the famous writer gives a series of lectures in Jordan Hall, the first of them tonight on "The Ignorance of the Educated."

Mr. Chesterton's appearance utterly refutes the tradition that men of prominence are usually insignificant looking. He is a man of commanding presence, more than six feet tall, proportionately heavy of frame, with a thatch of brown hair and a rather thin mustache of the same color.

Readers of his "Manalive," "The Innocence of Father Brown" and other works might well have feared that his conversation would be intimidating to feeble intellects.

On the contrary, it was genial, informed with humor, and cram full of ideas wholly within the understanding of his interlocutor. Probably Mr. Chesterton employs a fine tact in dealing with casual acquaintances.

AMERICA IN DANGER.

Having been in this country only two days, he was loath to venture any "impressions."

"I would say rather that I am learning to correct impressions that were preconceived," said he. "Living in hotels, I am unable to judge how much background of home-life you Americans have. I have no doubt that there is a very sound background of that sort.

"It is a mistake to say that America is a democracy; it is a lie to say that England is. England has been, and is, an aristocratic government. America is in danger of losing not so much her democracy as her liberty.

"The danger increases with the tendency to abandon home life for life in a hotel. Do not misunderstand me; I am not intimating that Americans live in apartments any more than anyone else; but that is the tendency today all over the civilized world.

"People seem to think they are living a freer life, whereas they are really living a far more circumscribed one. The hearth is actually the shrine of freedom—not merely in a poetic sense, but in common sense. It is only in a man's own home that he can do as he pleases, whether it is living on the roof or something else."

While he was talking, the striking appearance of the famous essayist attracted the attention of many strollers through the lobby and there were various interruptions. He greeted each person who addressed him with great courtesy, and apparent surprise that he should be recognized. Once he confided:

"PENNY-DREADFULS."

"I get so sick of seeing my own face in the newspapers, like a sort of hideous decorative pattern—" He poked fretfully with his cane at the figured outlines of the carpet.

Recalling "The Man Who Was Thursday" and "The Napoleon of Notting Hill," the visitor asked:

"Why have you written novels without a single woman character in them?"

He chuckled. "In the first place, my books aren't novels—they are penny-dreadfuls. You know, 'Dick the Dead Shot,' and all that sort of thing. I don't pretend to be a novelist. As for love episodes—well, I fancy mine is rather a schoolboy idea.

"I feel as Thackery felt when he said he couldn't write a love scene without blushing painfully, even in the seclusion of his study. Besides if I were to go in for writing about the psychology of romantic emotions I should have to fill my books cram full of girls and women."

"Shall We Abolish the Inevitable?" is Mr. Chesterton's subject for Friday afternoon; and for Saturday evening, "The Perils of Health."

LACK OF FUNDS FOR HUB YARD, SAYS DANIELS

Lack of sufficient funds may make it impossible to introduce steel chain making in the Charlestown Navy Yard to keep the working force there fully employed, Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy, stated in a communication today to Mayor Peters. Congress cut down Navy Department appropriations to the place where the department is compelled to ask for deficiencies, the secretary states. He declares he is greatly interested in everything that will make the navy yards better serve the needs of the country, and promises further consideration of the Mayor's suggestion.

PLAN TO SLAUGHTER SQUIRRELS AS PESTS

Willimantic, Ct., Jan. 12.—Gray squirrels, which unaccountably have appeared in large numbers in this vicinity, have become such a pest that steps are being taken to do away with them. The local aldermen, by a unanimous vote, have asked the district Senator and Assemblymen to secure the enactment of a law permitting owners of property being destroyed to kill the squirrels. Coventry, Stafford and several towns in Windham and New London County are also sufferers from squirrels.

ATROCITIES IN ERIN REVEALED

Bets Laid on Who Can Shoot Girls "Best," Says Mrs. Sheehy-Skeffington

Portions of letters written from Ireland by Mrs. Hannah Sheehy-Skeffington to a Boston woman were made public today by the American Association for the Recognition of the Irish Republic.

In some of these letters Mrs. Sheehy-Skeffington is quoted as writing:

"You have no idea of the pitch the terror has reached—priests tortured for confessional secrets and, when they are refused, murdered. Bishops being served with death notices; nurses and nuns actually arrested and kept 24 hours alone in dissolute company, without a drink of water or a chance of rest—no woman around and not a moment's privacy.

"Two priests have been shot to death, Canon Magner and Fr. Griffin. The Black and Tan who shot Canon Magner was adjudged 'insane.' When Captain Coldhurst had my husband shot it was 'mental derangement.' Fr. Griffin was on his way to testify in Washington as to conditions in Ireland.

"What I referred to above was the fate of a Bon Secour Sister this week, and there were two others taken away in a lorry. The Black and Tans actually bet (as an English officer reported) as to who could 'pot' girls best. And so a girl of sixteen years was butchered this week for a 'pot shot.' Attempts also by the 15th Hussars' officers on two lonely women living in Dublin. They resisted and fought and struggled till help came, but were wounded by their attackers, who fired at them in rage.

"Then the Croke Park butchery, and so on. Pass this on to friends and, though things are terrible, I have confidence that right will win. But the present gang seem to wish to lay the country waste and massacre generally, if they have to evacuate Ireland, as they know they will . . ."

"Things are worse than ever at home. Conditions just beggar all description. Indecencies and attempted attacks on women have begun—this to keep the men at home, you see. Then drunken officers come and pour petrol on women in bed, who only escape in time." (This in County Cork.)

Then follows an account of a most revolting atrocity perpetrated on a pretty young girl acquaintance of the writer. The young girl, after being most shamefully abused, was compelled to dress in the presence of the drunken Black and Tans and taken to the Castle, where they kept her for twenty-four hours. Mrs. Sheehy-Skeffington concludes:

"She is young and pretty and had good nerves, but is a wreck since that. I can't tell you half the abominations—they seem more like devils than men."

MISS HELEN JACOBS TO WED NAVAL OFFICER

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lincoln Jacobs of 2 Greenough place, Jamaica Plain, have announced the engagement of their second daughter, Helen, to Lieutenant Richard Lansing Conolly, U. S. N. Miss Jacobs is a graduate of Wellesley College, class of 1920, and has since been connected with the department of zoology there. She also is treasurer of the Graduate Club of Wellesley. Lieutenant Conolly is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Conolly of Waukegan, Ill. He was graduated from Annapolis in 1914 and is at present engaged in post-graduate work of the academy. Mrs. John Holme Lambert of New York city, a sister of Miss Jacobs, was a bride of last June. The wedding of Miss Jacobs and Lieutenant Conolly will take place in the early Summer.

WARRANTS OUT FOR LIQUOR DEFAULTERS

A bench warrant was issued today by Judge Aldrich in United States District Court for the arrest of Jake Goodman and Isidore Brown of Lawrence, who failed to appear in court to answer charges of manufacturing fifty gallons of intoxicating liquor. Both were indicted by the Grand Jury. A similar warrant was issued for Julius Freedman of Kimball avenue, Revere, who was indicted on charges of illegally possessing fifteen gallons of whiskey.

MOTHER SEFKS NEWS OF WILLIAM F. SUPRY

Mrs. Elizabeth Supry of No. 39 Centre street, Methuen, formerly of Nashua, N. H., has asked the Boston American to help her locate her son, William F. Supry, thirty-three years old, who left home February 2, 1913. The last that was heard of him was in 1915. He was then in Mission, Texas.

CHESEA MAN FINED $250 IN LIQUOR CASE

William Obaloff, alias William Abeloff of Chelsea, was given one month in United States District Court and a fine of $250 for unlawfully removing 125 gallons of liquor without paying the taxes on it. Abeloff pleaded guilty to the indictment by the Grand Jury.

NAUMKEAG MILLS MEN TO DISCUSS WAGE CUT

Salem, Jan. 12.—More than 1,103 members of Local No. 33 of the American Federation of Textile Operatives, employed by the Naumkeag Mills here, will meet tonight to discuss the proposed 22½ per cent. cut in wages and other matters. It is believed the question of accepting the cut will be voted upon.

Stripped and 2 Ribs Broken by Belt

Joseph S. Thompson, twenty-three years old, of 33 Alpine street, Somerville, sustained two broken ribs and narrowly escaped death today when his coat caught in a shafting belt while he was working at the C. G. Aldrich Company factory, Somerville.

Thompson was lifted several feet by the swiftly revolving belt. Every shred of clothing with the exception of his collar was ripped from his body and he was thrown to the floor.

'BUSINESS NEAR POST-WAR BASIS'

Banker Sisson Urges Foreign Trade at Auto Commerce Chamber Dinner

Continued betterment of business conditions all over the country is reported by dispatches from business and industrial centres.

Post-war adjustment in the United States has been completed, according to a statement made at the annual dinner of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce in New York by Francis H. Sisson, Manhattan banker and financier.

"We have even ground for believing that the nation will reach a relatively stable condition within a short time," declared Mr. Sisson.

INCREASE FOREIGN TRADE.

Mr. Sisson told his hearers that, though the most critical time has passed for this country, the need for increased foreign trade remains vital if the nation is to get on its business and commercial feet before Spring.

From big manufacturing centres like Toledo and Detroit come announcements of further improvements in conditions. The unemployment situation in the rubber city of Toledo is very much bettered over what it was a week ago. A week ago the number of idle was given at approximately 28,000, whereas today it is reported at less than 15,000.

In New England the situation grows more rosy daily. The Moulton Manufacturing Company at Rutland will re-open Monday after having been closed since July.

RESUMES FULL WEEK.

The gingham and other departments of the Bates Manufacturing Company at Lewiston, Me., has resumed a full six-day week, and an another day was added to the week of the Hill Mill cotton plant at the same place.

A slight shadow was cast by the announcement that 4,000 hands employed at the India Rubber Company's mills at Bristol, R. I., would be laid off indefinitely. The unusually warm Winter is blamed for this.

At Paterson, N. J., 22,000 silk mill workers are idle, as a result of the closing down of five mills in the North Hudson district. The management says that under the new working schedule the operatives were supposed to reach the mills 45 minutes earlier. They are alleged to have failed in this, hence the closing of the mills.

Other mills in North Jersey are closed, the management giving the same reason for the shutdown.

NORTH ADAMS WALKOUT.

For the most part, there has been no cloud on the brightened industrial skies, but at North Adams twenty-five card setters refused to accept the reduction in wages at the Davis & Thurber plant and walked out. About seventy-five other workers are affected by this action.

In South Worcester weavers employed by the Whittall Carpet Mills also voted to refuse to accept the wage cut, and threatened to strike.

BARON GUSTAV DI ROSA RETURNS FROM ROME

Baron Gustav di Rosa, whose Summer home, "Magnolia," is just outside Boston, has returned from Rome, and is at the Hotel Chatham, Vanderbilt avenue at Forty-eighth street, New York. Baron di Rosa is of the Italian consular service in the United States. Others from Boston at the Chatham Hotel include: Mrs. Allen Forbes, Mrs. Charles Tower, Charles Tower, Jr., Miss Alice J. Paige, Mrs. O. A. Thaw and Miss Nelle M. S. Rignault and Miss Helen Hood of Brookline.

Elected Mayor at 26

Dayton, Wash., Jan. 12.—Lloyd C. Edwards, twenty-six, was elected Mayor by a majority of seventy-seven votes over Homer Samuels, his opponent, who received 324 votes.

Mr. Edwards is the youngest man ever elected Mayor of Dayton.

Cascarets

Take one or two Cascarets occasionally to keep your liver and bowels active. When bilious, constipated, headachy, unstrung or for a cold, upset stomach, or bad breath, nothing acts so nicely as Cascarets. Children love them too, 10, 25, 50 cents.

Methuen's Fate is in Hands of Women

Methuen, Jan. 12.—Women will be the deciding factor in the matter of settling whether or not Methuen will remain a city or become a town. There are 1,944 women who will have a voting voice in the question.

Many Lawrence people who were forced out of the city by crowded tenement conditions are now residents of Methuen and will also swell the number eligible to vote.

The town meeting, which will be necessary to get the voice of the people, will be held in five sections, each ward having its own meeting, a proceeding unique in the annals of the Commonwealth.

NEW SYSTEM OF PENSIONS URGED

Special Commission Recommends Contributory Plan for State Employes

Declaring that the pensions for retired public employes have doubled in this State in the past seven years, the Joint Special Commission on Pensions today recommended that the Legislature abolish the non-contributory pension system and set up a new system, under which all employes shall contribute to their retirement funds.

These recommendations, if accepted, will result in the immediate abolition of the non-contributory system for judges, State and Metropolitan Police and all other State employes, and the gradual elimination of the non-contributory pensions now enjoyed by hundreds of county and municipal employes.

It is provided that all future appointees to positions as Boston school teachers shall go under the non-contributory system. The pensions for judges would be abolished entirely.

In their stead, the Legislature would be empowered to establish a retirement age for judges and the Governor and Council would be allowed to vote individual pensions who were forced to give up their positions because of disability.

The report shows that in 1913 there were 1,501 pensioners on the rolls of the State, counties, cities and towns, receiving $721,264.03 a year. Last year, the number of pensioners had increased to 2,950, who were receiving $1,535,647.32 a year. Boston had increased from 931 to 1,246 pensioners and the annual payment from $450,955.70 to $671,346.53.

VORENBERG FOR BUSINESS MEN

Would Send Them to Congress to Break Lawyers' Monopoly in Government

Felix Vorenberg of Boston, speaking at a dinner of the National Shoe Wholesalers' Association at the Copley-Plaza, advocated that business men be sent to Washington to break the monopoly of lawyers in government.

"It seems to me," said Mr. Vorenberg, "that some of our mechants and manufacturers, managing businesses which employ anywhere from 3,000 to 10,000 workers, with all their families dependent on the business, should have something to say in the affairs of the government and could be used to advantage to help administer the government."

ADVOCATES REPEAL.

He urged the repeal of the excess profits tax and the substitution of a sales tax, declaring that, however else business men may differ, they were united on these two repeals. He also urged the introduction of business methods into the government.

Referring to present conditions, especially to the difference between retailers and manufacturers in regard to the cancellation of orders, Mr. Vorenberg said:

"Cancellations of orders ought to be done away with, because it is unbusinesslike and unethical. Cancellation as much as speculation is the curse of business. A fair-minded man does not try to get out of his agreements."

He referred to the accusations made by manufacturers against retailers in this matter, and admitted that in some cases the complaints were justified.

WAITS YEAR FOR GOODS.

In a great many instances, however, he declared the retailer had waited so long for delivery of his goods that he was quite right in cancelling his orders. His own firm, he said, had twenty-seven unfilled orders that were placed more than a year ago and he knew of another that had more than eighty.

E. M. Scattergood, president of the association, presided, and addresses were also made by Senator Henry F. Ashurst of Arizona and Professor Owen G. Sprague, dean of the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration.

Educational Society to Meet

The forty-fifth annual meeting of the Society for the University Education of Women will be held at the home of Mrs. Ernest G. Howes, No. 325 Commonwealth avenue, next Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Charles H. Bonney will preside.

On Monday the Boston American will reprint the Test Pictures of the Second Day, Fourth Day, Sixth Day, Eighth Day, etc., etc., that is, the "even" days.

Sunday will be the Twenty-seventh Day of the Test. The Test Pictures for that day will be Nos. 53 and 54. In addition to these, the Boston Sunday Advertiser will contain Pictures Nos. 1, 2, 5, 6, 9, 10, 13, 14, 17, 18, 21, 22, 25, 26, 29, 30, 33, 34, 37, 38, 41, 42, 45, 46, 49 and 50.

Monday will be the Twenty-eighth Day of the Test. The Test Pictures due on that day in the Boston American will be Nos. 55 and 56. The American will reprint Pictures Nos. 3, 4, 7, 8, 11, 12, 15, 16, 19, 20, 23, 24, 27, 27, 31, 33, 35, 36, 3, 40, 43, 44, 47, 48, 51 and 52.

WHY SPLIT UP

Twenty-eight Test Pictures in the Boston Sunday Advertiser!

And twenty-eight in Monday's Boston American!

The reason for this division may not at first be apparent.

There are two reasons for it:

First, the widespread—not to say general—demand for another reprinting of ALL Back Pictures.

Second, the fact that the printing of Fifty-six Test Pictures in a single issue of the Boston Sunday Advertiser would take more room than that newspaper is prepared to set aside for such a purpose.

Hence the split. Half the Back Pictures in the Boston Sunday Advertiser; the other half, in Monday's Boston American.

This, remember, will be absolutely the LAST re-printing of Back Pictures. If you have not made a beginning in the Test, you MUST have in next Sunday's Boston Sunday Advertiser AND next Monday's Boston American or—you do not start.

This is a $5,000 search, promoted by the Boston American in association with the Boston Sunday Advertiser, for the 219 New Englanders who are best informed about the motion-picture folk.

For sixty days—this is the Twenty-third Day—the co-operating newspapers will print daily two pictures of popular movie players.

LIST OF THE AWARDS.

Our readers—those who are taking part in the Test—are asked to IDENTIFY these movie folk by writing the correct name under each picture.

At the end of the Test, soon after the middle of the month, the following awards, IN CASH, will be made to those who have the largest percentages of CORRECT identifications:

ONE FIRST AWARD	$1,000
ONE SECOND AWARD	750
ONE THIRD AWARD	500
ONE FOURTH AWARD	400
ONE FIFTH AWARD	300
ONE SIXTH AWARD	200
ONE SEVENTH AWARD	150
ONE EIGHTH AWARD	100
ONE NINTH AWARD	50
100 AWARDS OF $10 EACH	1,000
110 AWARDS OF $5 EACH	550
TOTAL	$5,000

Today's Test Pictures, Nos. 45 and 46, are on the Picture Page. Tomorrow, Nos. 47 and 48; Friday, Nos. 49 and 50; Saturday, Nos. 51 and 52, will be printed in this newspaper.

On sunday, half of all the Back Pictures will be shown in the Boston Sunday Advertiser. On Monday, the remaining half in the Boston American.

Beginning with next Tuesday, the Test will run its natural course.

THIS WILL BE ABSOLUTELY YOUR FINAL OPPORTUNITY TO OBTAIN ALL THE BACK PICTURES.

The wisdom of placing an early order for the Boston Sunday American AND next Monday's Boston American is obvious.

DON'T FUSS WITH MUSTARD PLASTERS!

Musterole Works Without the Blister—Easier, Quicker

There's no sense in mixing a mess of mustard, flour and water when you can easily relieve pain, soreness or stiffness with a little clean, white Musterole.

Musterole is made of pure oil of mustard and other helpful ingredients, combined in the form of the present white ointment. It takes the place of mustard plasters, and will not blister.

Musterole usually gives prompt relief from sore throat, bronchitis, tonsilitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds of the chest (it often prevents pneumonia).

35c and 65c jars; hospital size $3.00

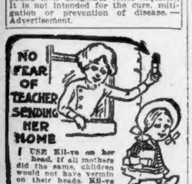
SAGE TEA KEEPS YOUR HAIR DARK

It's Grandmother's recipe to bring back color, youthfulness and lustre—Everybody is using it again.

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a bottle "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully, besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.—Advertisement.



NO FEAR OF TEACHER SENDING HER HOME

I USE Kil-ve on her head. If all mothers did the same, children would not have vermin on their heads. Kil-ve is a non-oily, non-sticky vermin destroyer; doesn't interfere with color or growth of hair. No fine comb needed if Kil-ve is used. Don't be ashamed to ask for it. At all drug stores—35c, 65c and $1.25.

SAWTELLE HEADS SOUTH BOSTON IRISH COUNCIL

At a meeting of the Dorchester Heights Council, American Association for the Recognition of the Irish Republic, South Boston, the following officers were elected: John J. Sawtelle, president; Mrs. John J. Shine, vice-president; Elizabeth Keaney, secretary; John J. O'Connor, treasurer; Timothy Keleher, orator; C. P. O'Sullivan, guard; Dennis J. Cronin, director of organization and publicity; Daniel J. O'Connor, Mrs. C. D. Ryan and Mrs. Della Kennedy, trustees.

The organization is making an extensive drive for new members in the peninsular district and indications point to this council as developing into the largest in the State.

HAVERHILL CHURCH IS BUILT IN RECORD TIME

Haverhill, Jan. 12.—All building records in the city were eclipsed by the First Church of Christ, Scientist. At 7 o'clock in the morning stone foundations only graced the new lot of the society on Newcomb street; at 1 o'clock in the afternoon a chapel with a seating capacity of 200 had been built. General Contractor Forrest Taylor had the parts of the chapel built in advance and then fitted them on the site. Later a big church will be built.

PURSE THIEF CAUGHT AFTER MILE CHASE

Lawrence, Jan. 12.—Clara Herkner of No. 428 Milford street, Manchester, N. H., who came here to visit friends, gave Anthony Dimariano, a small boy, a dime for carrying her traveling bag from the station.

She said that she was about to pay the boy when he snatched her pocketbook, containing $3, and ran off. The chase extended over a mile with pedestrians and police fast on the boy's trail before he was caught.

New England Theatres Co-operating in $5,000 Test

The tremendous popularity of the $5,000 Movie Player Identification Test, promoted by the Boston American in association with the Boston Sunday Advertiser, is attested by the co-operation of nearly four hundred motion picture theatres!

This is a quest for the 219 New England movie fans who really KNOW the players. Everybody may enter, but it appears to be an undeniable proposition that the First Award of $1,000, the Second of $750, the Third of $500, and most of the other large awards, will be paid to men, women and children who have the "movie habit" and who are most familiar with the faces of the players.

In each of these nearly four hundred popular playhouses—the best theatres in New England are named below—the Test Pictures are flashed upon the screen at every performance exactly as they are shown in the Boston American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

These are the co-operating theatres, which are doing so much to help Boston American readers keep posted on the Who's Who of Shadowland:

Rules of Movie Player Identity Trial

The Boston American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser's new Moving Picture Players' Identification Test is a test of skill and judgment open to all readers of the Boston American and Boston Sunday Advertiser, irrespective of age, living in any city or town in New England or Canada.

Two hundred and nineteen cash awards will be given by these two newspapers to their readers who submit the largest percentage of correct identifications to the 120 pictures to be published in these two newspapers.

All employes of the Boston American, the Boston Sunday Advertiser, and their families, and all moving picture players and persons connected with the moving picture industry are absolutely barred from participating in the awards.

The Test will consist of 120 pictures of favorite moving picture players, to be printed two each day, in the Boston American and Boston Sunday Advertiser, first picture Sunday, December 19, 1920.

Participation in any other contest which has been run, which is now running or which shall be run by the Boston American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser will not debar anyone from entering this Test.

Every participant or any or all members of a family will be allowed to submit one set of pictures, but each set must contain only ONE identification to each picture, and no participant shall be entitled to more than one award, and not more than one award shall be given in any one family.

Each and every identification must be neatly written or printed on the coupon furnished by the Boston American or Boston Sunday Advertiser or on a page of some book form by itself, accompanied either by the picture furnished by the Boston American or Boston Sunday Advertiser, or a pen or pencil copy thereof, and must have the name, residence, etc., of the participant on each identification blank.

Do not send your identification in "list" form, i. e., do not write identifications under one another on a piece of paper.

In case there are no complete sets of correct identifications, awards will be given to the persons submitting the largest percentage of correct identifications.

In case of a tie awards will be made on the basis of neatness, judgment and exact accuracy in spelling, but if the tie cannot be decided in that way, the tied participants will receive similar awards.

Under no circumstances should participants send in their identifications before the end of the Test, as any sent in before the last picture is printed will not be considered. KEEP your identifications from day to day and at the end of the Test arrange them in numerical order and then send them in all together at one time.

Time will not be a factor in making the awards. The first identifications sent in after the Test closes will stand no better than the last submitted.

All identifications must be delivered to the Boston American Movie Test Headquarters, at No. 80 Summer street, Boston 8, Mass., either by mail or in person within the specified time limit, which will be announced later.

All envelopes or packages containing identifications must be legibly addressed as follows: "Movie Test Editor, No. 80 Summer street, Boston 8, Mass., P. O. Box 239," and each envelope or package must bear the name and address of the sender legibly written or stamped on the upper left-hand corner.

As all identifications will contain written or printed matter, if mailed, it is absolutely necessary that the package be fully prepaid at postal letter rates, as mail of this character goes to the postoffice as first class matter. The Boston American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser reserve the right to refuse to consider any sets of identifications on which charges for postal delivery are not fully prepaid.

Participants who desire further information should address their inquiries to the Movie Test Editor, No. 80 Summer street, Boston 8, Mass. Questions will be answered, as far as possible, through the columns of the Boston American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser. If participants desire personal replies, they should enclose sufficient postage for such reply, or they may phone Main 5180, or call in person.

The Boston American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser reserves the right to make any change in, or addition to, these conditions that may be deemed necessary for fairly and properly conducting the test, and the decision of the Boston American Movie Test Editor on any question which may arise will be absolutely final, and the entry of a participant is a complete acceptance of all conditions now made or to be made.

JUNIOR DANCE AT HARVARD MARCH 4

March 4 has been tentatively selected as the date for the junior dance at Harvard, one of the three or four big social events of the year. Richard R. Higgins of Winchester has been appointed chairman of the committee, R. P. Parker of Salem secretary, and G. S. Morse, Hingham, treasurer. J. E. Cabot of Boston heads the invitations committee, Malcolm Bradlee of Boston will see to the selection of patronesses, A. L. Steinert of Boston the music, and Richard Chute of Philadelphia the supper.

TRY MAGNESIA FOR STOMACH TROUBLE

It Neutralizes Stomach Acidity, Prevents Food Fermentation, Sour Gassy Stomach and Acid Indigestion

Doubtless if you are a sufferer from indigestion, you have already tried pepsin, pancreatin, charcoal, drugs and various digestive aids and you know these things will not cure your trouble—in some cases do not even give relief.

But before giving up hope and deciding you are a chronic dyspeptic just try the effect of a little Bisurated Magnesia—not the ordinary commercial carbonate, citrate, or milk, but the pure Bisurated Magnesia which you can obtain from practically any druggist in either powdered or tablet form.

Take a teaspoonful of the powder or two compressed tablets with a little water after your next meal, and see what a difference this makes. It will instantly neutralize the dangerous harmful acid in the stomach which now causes your food to ferment and sour, making gas, wind, flatulence, heartburn and the bloated or heavy, lumpy feeling that seems to follow most everything you eat.

You will find that provided you take a little Bisurated Magnesia immediately after a meal, you can eat almost anything and enjoy it without any danger of pain or discomfort to follow, and moreover, the continued use of the bisurated magnesia cannot injure the stomach in any way so long as there are any symptoms of acid indigestion.—Advertisement.

How To Revitalize Wornout Exhausted Nerves

Your nerve power depends on plenty of good, rich, red blood of the kind that organic iron—Nuxated Iron—helps make. It is like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples, it does not injure the teeth nor upset the stomach. It is entirely different from ordinary metallic iron. It quickly helps make rich, red blood, revitalize wornout, exhausted nerves and give you new strength and energy. Over 4,000,000 people annually are using it. Beware of substitutes. Always insist upon having genuine organic iron—Nuxated Iron. Look for the letters N. I. on every tablet. At all druggists.

COLDS

"Pape's Cold Compound" is Quickest Relief Known

Don't stay stuffed-up! Quit blowing and snuffling! A dose of "Pape's Cold Compound" taken every two hours until three doses are taken usually breaks any cold right up.

The very first dose opens clogged nostrils and the air passages of the head stops nose running; relieves the headache, dullness, feverishness.

"Pape's Cold Compound" costs only a few cents at drug stores. It acts without assistance, tastes nice, contains no quinine—Insist upon Pape's!

BLAZE EMPTIES 32 APARTMENTS

Allston Tenants Forced to Flee, Leaving Valuables Behind Them

Occupants of thirty-two flats in the apartment house No. 1131 Commonwealth avenue, Allston, were badly frightened and driven to the street scantily clad when fire swept through a rear flat on the first floor, causing considerable damage to furniture and other property.

The fire, which started in a bedroom in the apartment occupied by Harriet M. Ahearn, gained rapid headway and when the firemen arrived long tongues of flame were shooting out of the windows.

Thick smoke filled the lower corridors and rapidly spread to the upper floors, warning the occupants, many of whom were asleep, of the fire. After the alarm had been sounded there was a mad scramble by the various families to reach the street. Clothing and valuables were forgotten by the occupants in their haste to escape from the building.

Women and men, many clad in their night clothing, stood on the street facing the building until after the fire had been extinguished. The fire was of unknown origin.

The property is owned by Goodsmith Brothers of Campello.

CITY DEMOCRATS SPENT $3,125

Presidential Campaign Return Shows Mayor, 'Joe' Lomasney Giving $100 Each

The presidential election campaign returns of the Boston Democratic City Committee, filed by Treasurer John F. Doherty, were made public by the Secretary of State's Department today.

The committee received contributions amounting to $3,125, of which $2,600 was from the State Committee. The largest individual contributors were Mayor Peters, Joseph P. Lomasney and James Donovan, who gave $100 each.

After paying the nominal election expenses, including printing and office expenses, the fund was distributed among the wards for local expenses. The returns show this distribution:

Thomas R. Kelley, Wards 1 and 2, $150; Joseph Kilday, 13, and Patrick Donovan, 15, $100 each; James F. Mooney, 11, $90; Edward McLaughlin, 6, William Hickey, 9, Thomas Glynn, 12, Peter McCarthy, 19, Patrick Brophy, 20, and Timothy J. Burns, 21, $75 each.

James H. Brennan, 3, Robert Lee, 4, James McDonold, 17, Joseph L. Corcoran, 18, Patrick Brady, 22, and Patrick Fox, 24, $70 each; James D. McQuaide, 7, Richard Murray, 8, and Edward Canty, 16, $50 each; John A. Kiggen, 24, and John Lane, 25, $35 each.

TALKS WITH HARDING ON CAMPAIGN DEFICIT

Marion, O., Jan. 12.—William Royce Thompson, of New York, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee of the Republican National Committee, took up with Senator Harding today the question of wiping out the deficit with which the committee concluded the campaign. Colonel Thompson, it is understood, reported to the President-elect the result of the appeal for individual contributions to cover the $1,600,000 shortage. Cabinet appointments also were exhaustively discussed by Colonel Thompson and the next President, it is reported.

Insurance Worker Causes Arrest of Man He Has Sought Since August

The mystery of thefts of many small articles from downtown office buildings is believed to have been solved by the arrest of Dana McArthur, twenty-six years old, of No. 24 Stearns street, Malden, and Carlisle L. Lakeman, twenty years old, of No. 190 Spring street, Medford.

McArthur is held at the City Hall avenue station on three charges of larceny from downtown office buildings and Lakeman is booked as a suspicious person.

It was through the perseverance of Joseph Lovegren, a clerk in the employ of the John Hancock Insurance Company, that the men were arrested.

Lovegren alleges that last August McArthur and Lakeman escaped, after stealing jewelry and handbooks from the offices of the insurance company. Since then he has been on the lookout for the pair.

Monday he saw McArthur on an Elevated train bound for Everett and followed him as far as Malden square, where McArthur left the car with Lovegren close behind.

There Lovegren found Patrolman Neville of the Malden police and caused McArthur's arrest. McArthur's sweetheart in Malden is being sought by the police in the belief that she might aid them.

1000 Eggs in Every Hen

New System Of Poultry Keeping—Get Dollar A Dozen Eggs—Famous Poultryman

TELLS HOW

"The great trouble with the poultry business has always been that the laying life of a hen was too short," says Henry Trafford, International Poultry Expert and Breeder, for nearly eighteen years Editor of Poultry Success.

The average pullet lays 150 eggs. If kept the second year, she may lay 100 more. Then she goes to market. Yet, it has been scientifically established that every pullet is born or hatched with over one thousand minute eggs germs in her system—and will lay them on a highly profitable basis over a period of four to six years' time if given proper care.

How to work to get 1,000 eggs from every hen; how to get pullets laying early; how to make the old hens lay like pullets, how to keep up heavy egg production all through cold winter months when eggs are highest; triple egg production; make slacker hens hustle; $5.00 profit from every hen in six winter months. These and many other money making poultry secrets are contained in Mr. Trafford's "1,000 EGG HEN" system of poultry raising, one copy of which will be sent absolutely free to any reader of this paper who keeps six hens or more. Eggs should go to a dollar or more a dozen this winter. This means big profit to the poultry keeper who gets the eggs. Mr. Trafford tells how. If you keep chickens and want them to make money for you, cut out this ad and send it with your name and address to Henry Trafford, Suite 912S, Tyne Bldg., Binghamton, N. Y., and a free copy of "THE 1,000 EGG HEN" will be sent by return mail.—Advertisement.

Ends Stubborn Coughs in a Hurry

For real effectiveness, this old home-made remedy has no equal. Easily and cheaply prepared.

You'll never know how quickly a bad cough can be conquered, until you try this famous old home-made remedy. Anyone who has coughed all day and all night, will say that the immediate relief given is almost like magic. It is very easily prepared, and there is nothing better for coughs.

Into a pint bottle, put 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. Or you can use clarified molasses, honey, or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, the full pint saves about two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough preparations, and gives you a more positive, effective remedy. It keeps perfectly, and tastes pleasant—children like it.

You can feel this take hold instantly, soothing and healing the membranes in all the air passages. It promptly loosens a dry, tight cough, and soon you will notice the phlegm thin out and disappear. A day's use will usually break up an ordinary throat or chest cold, and it is also splendid for bronchitis, croup, hoarseness, and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, the most reliable remedy for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

"DANDERINE"

Girls! Save Your Hair! Make It Abundant!

Immediately after a "Danderine" massage, your hair takes on new life, lustre and wondrous beauty, appearing twice as heavy and plentiful, because each hair seems to fluff and thicken. Don't let your hair stay lifeless, colorless, plain or scraggly. You, too, want lots of long, strong, beautiful hair.

A 35-cent bottle of delightful "Danderine" freshens your scalp, checks dandruff and falling hair. This stimulating "beauty-tonic" gives to thin, dull, fading hair that youthful brightness and abundant thickness.—All druggists!

STOMACH ON A STRIKE

"Pape's Diapepsin" puts Sour, Gassy, Acid Stomachs in order at once!

Wonder what upset your stomach—which portion of the food did the damage—do you? Well, don't bother. If your stomach is in revolt; if sick, gassy and upset, and what you just ate has fermented and turned sour; head dizzy and aches; belch gases and acids and eructate undigested food—just eat a tablet or two of Pape's Diapepsin to help neutralize acidity and in five minutes you wonder what became of the indigestion and distress. If your stomach doesn't take care of your liberal limit without rebellion; if your food is a damage instead of a help, remember the quickest, surest, most harmless antacid is Pape's Diapepsin, which costs so little at drug stores.—Advertisement.

How Boston Will See Fokina

Vera Fokina, famous Russian dancer, who will appear with her husband, Michel Fokine, in a series of dances at Symphony Hall.

"Salome," with its dance of the Seven Veils, has several times been barred from Boston. The Oscar Wilde play was forbidden, the Strauss opera, "Salome," in which Mary Garden was to have played the daughter of Herodiade; Massenet's opera, "Herodiade," and Theda Bara in the film version of "Salome," all alike got the gate from the Boston authorities.

And now Vera Fokina, the greatest living dancer, the artist for whom all the great Russian ballets were created by her genius husband, Michel Fokina, proposes to include in her repertory of great dances the Russian version of Salome and the seven veils.

Why Boston should have such a prejudice against Salome when every great city in the world permits it has never been explained. Not one but several city administrations have continued the traditions.

Can Vera Fokina break through?

The Fokinas, or Fokine and Fokina, as the Russians call them, have never been to Boston. New York has gone wild over their dancing. Three times they packed the Metropolitan Opera House and finally the Hippodrome was necessary.

A year ago they were announced to appear at Symphony Hall, but Fokine got the influenza. Fokina could not leave his bedside.

These wonderful Russians resisted all appeals to come to America for ten years though their pupils Pavlowa, Mordkin and Nijinsky all toured America. Oscar Hammerstein ten years ago offered them a quarter of a million dollars to cross the ocean, but so great was their success in Europe that the offer did not tempt them.

3 ARE CAUGHT IN RIDDLED AUTO

Vanesse Brothers, Arrested in New Bedford, Confess to Many Robberies

New Bedford, Jan. 12.—Confessing, the police say, to several burglaries in southeastern Massachusetts and Rhode Island, three brothers, George, Wilfred and Joseph Vanesse, twenty-three to twenty-eight years old, were turned over to the Taunton police following their arrest at their home here.

An automobile, riddled with a dozen bullet holes, and in which they had been making their midnight excursions, was seized.

They admitted, the police allege, to robbing the jewelry store of P. J. Finnegan & Company, Taunton, of $5,000 in jewelry on the night of December 31 and escaping in their machine.

The trio are also said to have admitted breaks in Bristol and Pawtucket, R. I., and entering four summer cottages at Falmouth.

Walter Fowler, thirty-seven years old, an insurance agent, was also placed under arrest.

You Can't Brush Or Wash Out Dandruff

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this tonight, and by morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.—Advertisement.

STROUT DONATES RARE HARVARD DOCUMENT

The Harvard College library has received from Percy S. Strout of New York an interesting original document connected with the early interest of Harvard. It is the original subscription paper of the Town and Church of Concord, in which several residents pledged themselves to give collectively 15 a year for the support of Harvard. Mr. Strout purchased it for $2,000, which sum went to the Harvard Endowment.

PLANS FAIL TO STOP SLAUGHTER OF BUFFALO

Salt Lake City, Jan. 12.—W. O. Stillman, president of the American Humane Society, today announced negotiations were too late to stop the slaying of bison on Antelope Island by hunters from Ogden, Utah, and Los Angeles. Protest was made by the local Commercial Club. The bison are owned by the Buffalo Livestock Company, to which concern the hunters will pay $200 each for the privilege of killing the animals.

SAVED BY AMBITION TO BECOME U. S. CITIZEN

The fact that Amos Bertachini of Somerville avenue, Somerville, is about to apply for his final citizenship papers saved him from a criminal record for violation of the liquor laws. Patrolmen raided his home and found a still and a quantity of liquor. Before Judge Farrell the prisoner pleaded guilty and asked for a "filed sentence" that he might apply for Americanization without a court record. Judge Farrell acceded to his request on his payment of $50 court costs.

RUM TRAFFIC STILL "BARKS," SAYS EVANGELIST LYON

"The process of salvation for a soul is like that of incubation of an egg: if you put the egg in the incubator only one day a week, it will take a long time to hatch out a chicken."

"There's a great deal of churchianity that is not Christianity."

"A man might be as enthusiastic about his church as he is about his baseball team—and with no higher motive."

"As the spokes of a wheel approach the hub, as the planets revolve about the sun, so as men approach the Savior they come nearer to each other."

"More than America needs big houses, big banks, or big railroads, she needs a genuine old-fashioned revival of religion."

"Knowledge and zeal are like the two parts of a pair of shears—one isn't much good without the other." —Sparks from Revivalist Lyon's gospel anvil.

"Lyon is the only man in America who can go through an eight-weeks' campaign and never look at a note."

That is the tribute Billy Sunday paid to Rev. Dr. Milford Hall Lyon.

Dr. Lyon has just arrived here to conduct a three-weeks' revival in evangelistic churches of Dorchester, under Union Church auspices.

He is retiring president of the Interdenomination of Evangelistic Associations, former president of Ellsworth College, Iowa, and was an overseas "Y" worker during the war.

He will tell you he is a Presbyterian, but in the same breath says he wants to get away from denomination in his revival work, and try to make all the churches "get together."

"During the war," he told a Boston American reporter, "I saw 25,000 boys accept the Gospel, and I never even asked what their creed might be. I know, however, that all creeds were represented, and believe that at least 40 per cent. of the boys who took me by the hand were Roman Catholics. There was a tremendous spiritual awakening in those times, and boys did not bother much about creed differences. They were so eager at the meetings that I have seen them vault over the backs of benches to get to the preacher and take him by the hand.

REACTION SINCE WAR'S END.

"Since the war ended there has been a reaction, a letting down of social standards. It is harder to awaken people spiritually and emotionally. A good many believed that passing the eighteenth amendment was going to make people good. It reminds me of the little girl who was afraid of a big dog because he barked. Her mother tried to conquer her fear by patting the dog and then saying, 'Come now, pat him, he isn't barking.' But the little girl hung back, saying: 'I don't want to, mother; the bark is still in him!'

"The 'bark' is still in the liquor traffic, I am sorry to say. Something besides legislation has got to help us. With anarchy and Bolshevism abroad in the land, the time is coming when those who believe in the Savior have got to get together. I don't mean simply be good churchmen. There's a great deal of Churchianity that isn't Christianity. A man might be as enthusiastic about his church as he is about his baseball team—and with no higher motive.

Dr. Lyon and Billy Sunday are the best of friends, and near neighbors in their homes at Winona Lake, Ind.; but Dr. Lyon is not an imitator of Billy's methods.

He is a rapid speaker; drives home his point often with homely stories, and is never at a loss for a forceful phrase.

Sometimes he closes his eyes, giving to his face an expression of great intensity and concentration.

When he opens them again they seem to have taken on a new and vivid blue, and reveal him to be very wide awake, indeed.

WIFE STAYS AT HOME.

Whereas, Mrs. Sunday accompanies her husband on his tours, Mrs. Lyon stays at home to take care of the children.

There are five, several of them now taking care of themselves, but loving to have the gentle mother keep a home for them. Helen, the eldest daughter, is married; Lieutenant Merle B. Lyon was his father's assistant for a year, now in college; Arthur is a business man; Margaret is at school in Tennessee, and Ruth, the baby, is a classmate of little Paul Sunday, in the eighth grade.

The revival meetings at Fields Corner are under the joint auspices of the Pilgrim Congregational, Stoughton Street Baptist and Baker Memorial Methodist Episcopal churches—a week at each church. On Thursday afternoon of this week he will speak at the Baker Memorial Church, Upham's Corner, to women only, on "The Ideal Woman."

Converts for All Creeds

"SINCE THE WAR THERE HAS BEEN REACTION, A LETTING DOWN OF SOCIAL STANDARDS!"
"MORE THAN AMERICA NEEDS BIG HOUSES, BIG BANKS, OR BIG RAILROADS, SHE NEEDS A GENUINE OLD-FASHIONED REVIVAL OF RELIGION."
"THE PROCESS OF SALVATION OF A SOUL IS LIKE THAT OF INCUBATION OF AN EGG."
"KNOWLEGE AND ZEAL ARE LIKE THE TWO PARTS OF A PAIR OF SHEARS — ONE ISN'T MUCH GOOD WITHOUT THE OTHER!"

Weymouth Beats Hub Building Record

Weymouth is growing faster than Boston. Even at the present rate of increase it will take Weymouth some years to catch up with Boston. During the past year, Weymouth, with a population of a little over 15,000, has erected thirty-one houses more than the Hub, with a population of 700,000.

A report issued by officials of Weymouth shows that 147 dwelling houses were built in that town during the past year. Boston reports that but 115 permits for the erection of dwelling houses of every description were issued.

HICCOUGHS CASES SPREAD IN MONTREAL

Montreal, Jan. 12.—Local physicians report an alarming increase in the number of cases of hiccoughs which they have been called on to treat during the past few days. As yet there is nothing to indicate that the trouble will become epidemic. Physicians say that heavy smokers seem to be suffering the most.

DANIELS GIVES NAVY FIGURES

U. S. and Britain in Lead With Japan Rapidly Gaining, Says Secretary

By International News Service.

Washington, Jan. 12.—Great Britain and the United States leading and Japan rapidly crawling up from third place.

This was the picture of the world's naval power, as presented to the House Committee on Naval Affairs today by Secretary Josephus Daniels. Secretary Daniels gave an elaborate system of tables of the three leading navies of the world, showing a ship-for-ship and ton-for-ton comparison.

"As far as we are able to determine from reliable sources," said the secretary, "it is found that when building programs authorized and projected have completed the following general situation will exist:

"First, in reference to the British Navy:

"In major ships and in great gun power, the United States will be superior. In total tonnage and effective fighting ships, the United States will be approximately equal to Great Britain. The United States Navy will, however, be considerably weaker in light cruisers and the other ships for protecting the main body of the fleet and conducting blockading operations.

"We will be slightly inferior in submarines and will have no modern aircraft carriers suitable for operating with the fleet. The lack of fleet aviation forces will place us at a disadvantage in comparison with Great Britain.

"Second, in comparison, with the Japanese navy:

"The United States Navy will be superior to the Japanese in total tonnage of effective ships in the ratio of 2½ to 1. If Japan should build her program projected but not yet authorized, the ratio would be 1.4 to 1 in favor of the United States. We will be superior in total ships, destroyers and submarines, but inferior in battleships and light cruisers."

COX HEADS ANCIENTS TO WAR AGAINST PESSIMISM

Calling on the members of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company to combat pessimism, Governor Cox signed the roll of that organization as its commander-in-chief, while 300 stood at attention at a dinner given by them in his honor at the City Club. "Study the lives of the men who lived in Massachusetts in 1621 as examples to be followed when times look black," said Governor Cox, "and when there is an appeal to despair, cowardice and fear."

Cut in Cigar Prices After Wage Slash

Westfield, Jan. 12.—Cigar manufacturers here have started reductions of wages to employes. The Town-Fuller Company has announced a 20 per cent. cut in wages and a like reduction to contemplating a reduction in wages and a like reduction to the wholesalers.

The retail prices of many regular brands are expected to be decreased with the lower labor costs in the factories. Some ten cigar factories are located here.

ACTORS GUESTS OF GREEN ROOM CLUB

Following its time honored custom in acting as host, many actors and actresses now appearing here, were guests of the Boston Green Room Club at its reception and tea at the Hotel Westminster. Mrs. Edward Harold Crosby, president of the club, was in charge of the affair, at which Mrs. T. B. Lothian, Mrs. J. Albert Brackett and Mrs. David E. Dow, were the pourers. The guests included Miss Daisy Belmore, of the Frances Starr Company, at the Tremont; Mr. and Mrs. Norton, of "Apple Blossoms" at the Colonial and Noel Leslie and Miss Mae Ediss of the Jewett Players at the Copley Theatre.

BOSTON SUNDAY ADVERTISER

BOSTON TO SEE CHINESE PLAY

Produced by Students From Far East in Their Native Tongue to Aid Starving

A Chinese play in the Chinese language with Chinese actors and Chinese music, will be given on the nights of January 30 and 31 at No. 694 Washington street, by Chinese students in colleges of Greater Boston for the aid of the suffering Chinese.

On the "big nights" there will be Chinese visitors here from Worcester, Lowell, Springfield and other cities in Massachusetts, for the committee disposing of tickets has been active in all these cities. Prices for the play range from $2 to $10 a seat and the committee hopes that some $2,000 will be raised for the North China Famine Relief Fund.

CHINESE FLOWER GIRLS.

The Chinese Merchants' Association of Boston has raised some $2,000 for the fund and students in colleges of Greater Boston have rolled up around a thousand dollars.

The play will last about two and a half hours, but there will be a number of side shows. Chinese girls will sell flowers, candy and other things and there will be a piano solo by Miss Margaret Leong, a student at the New England Conservatory of Music. She will also act as an usher.

K. C. Chang, a graduate student at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, is author of the play, which translated is called "The Permanent Republic." It is a story of the revolution in China, culminating in the establishment of a republic.

TWENTY IN CAST.

There are about twenty persons in the cast. Leading parts will be taken by Miss Wai Sheung Siu, Emerson College of Oratory; Miss Rose T. Hsuing, Mount Ida School, Newton; Miss P. Moy, a nurse at the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital. Miss Mei Wan Yung of Wellesley College will be the announcer. Several students at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology will also take part.

The general committee in charge consists of K. C. Chang, S. Seetoo, Y. C. Chen, S. L. Yang, K. T. Tu and F. C. Tsu, all of "Tech." There are several sub-committees to look after tickets, scenery, music, etc. Chin Lee, one of the Chinese merchants here, will direct the orchestra. All the instruments played by the orchestra will be from the Far East.

The Chinese Merchants' Association, the Chinese Welfare Society and the Chinese Y. M. C. A. are co-operating in making the event a success. Plans are under way to give a performance in English next month.

Prints Your Taxi Receipt

This machine, resembling cash register, records your taxicab bill and saves you vexation and cash. It's new in Boston.

Stop fussing with the driver over the amount of the taxicab bill, insist upon a taximeter receipt and take any dispute up with the main office for settlement.

That's the business-like way they are doing it in large cities now, and the Taxi Service Company of Boston has brought the meters here and installed them on the Black and White taxicabs it operates.

The new meter, which is made in Dayton, Ohio, looks somewhat like the old meter, but after each trip and, before the "vacant" flag can be displayed, it is necessary for the driver to turn a crank, which throws out a printed ticket similar to that of the cash register, showing the exact amount due for ride and extras.

The management of the company declares that, when the system is in general use, it will save thousands yearly to the public.

Cheer Up, Hub Blondes! Your Eyes Are O. K.

Do Boston blondes need blue eyeglasses to keep them "steady"?

This alliterative question was propounded to local eye specialists, following a thought-provoking speech in Chicago by Dr. R. C. Augustine, president of the American Optometric Association.

Dr. Augustine declared all blonde young women living in North America ought to wear blue glasses to protect themselves against the glaring sunlight.

He said many cases of "nerves"—from which blonde young women and their male relatives have been known to suffer—were directly traceable to the irritation caused by this glare.

But the blondes are not without a champion, for now comes Dr. Allen Greenwood, most famous of Massachusetts eye specialists, and says that light-complected persons, men or women, are not so suceptible to serious eye diseases as brunettes.

"Blondes find strong light more annoying than dark people," says Dr. Greenwood. "They are apt to have less pigment in their eyes. But this is not serious, except in the case of the albino, who always has eye trouble.

"The more serious eye troubles are more frequent among the dark-skinned people. Swedes, Norwegians and other blond races do not have the serious troubles with their sight that the olive-skinned natives of Spain or Southern Italy experience."

Dr. Greenwood and other eye specialists feel that the very superior type of blonde turned out in Boston does not need blue glasses to keep her "steady."

As for the girls themselves, particularly those with blue or blue-gray eyes of the "come-hither" variety, they scorn the very idea of "blinders."

BANDIT HOLDS UP YOUTH AND GIRL

Young Highwayman Gets $3 From Cambridge Man and Companion

While crossing the Western avenue bridge, Brighton, John Lynch, twenty years old, of No. 161½ Inman street, Cambridge, and a girl companion were held up by a youthful highwayman, who fled when the young woman screamed.

Lynch, who told the police that he was escorting the girl from Brighton to Cambridge, said that they had proceeded but a few yards on the bridge when they were accosted by a youth of about twenty years old. He pointed a revolver at Lynch and demanded money. The Cambridge man said he turned over three dollars to the highwayman.

When the robber pointed the revolver at Lynch his companion screamed, but the bridge was deserted and the holdup man escaped, fleeing in the direction of Brighton.

Lynch then reported the holdup to the police at the Harvard Square station, Cambridge. He said that the robber was about twenty-one years old, five feet six inches tall, of dark complexion and with a protruding jaw. He did not wear an overcoat.

MAXWELL AND CHALMERS COMBINATION EFFECTED

Reorganization plans of the Maxwell Chalmers Motor Company, which have been in process of formation for two or three years, have been completed. The two companies are now combined and will continue to manufacture and place on the market both cars. By the combination an additional $15,000,000 is added to the resources of the independent corporations and a powerful new organization created. For several years the distributing agencies have been together but with a dual purpose. Today it is a general combination with one selling plan. The new company plans an intensive manufacturing and selling campaign.

TO RELIEVE CATARRHAL DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES

If you have Catarrhal Deafness or are hard of hearing or have head noises go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength), and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take one tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has Catarrhal Deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial. —Advertisement.

5-DAY LIMIT LIFTED BY CIVIL SERVICE BOARD

Co-operating with cities and towns throughout the State that are trying to provide work for the unemployed, Commissioner of Civil Service Payson Dana today raised the barriers which limited the employment of men on public works, who are not under civil service, to five days a year.

The commissioner authorized the employment of men on public works departments, regardless of whether they have passed the civil service tests or not, for five days a month.

POETESS SINGS HEROES' DEEDS

Mrs. Armstrong of Dorchester Writes Odes for Soldier Square Dedications

Whenever a public square is dedicated to the memory of a World War hero of Dorchester, an extra feature is added which proves to be singularly pleasing to the relatives and friends of the dead soldier.

This feature consists of the reading of an original verse by Mrs. Henry Armstrong of No. 477 Washington street, Dorchester, who has thereby won the gratitude of members of American Legion posts in that section.

Her latest efforts at the dedication of Lewenberg Square, in memory of Mandal Lewenberg; Denton Square, in memory of Corporal Gordon E. Denton 101st Field Artillery; Chapman Square, in memory of Henry M. Chapman, and Hartnett Square, in memory of Corporal William F. Hartnett. The last two, among the briefest of the verses written by Mrs. Armstrong, follow:

CHAPMAN SQUARE

In Memory of Henry M. Chapman

He did not think when sailing o'er the sea
To fight for home and well-loved liberty
That he would sleep within a foreign grave;
He only thought the cause of right to save.

He did not think to play a hero's part,
He only knew the dictates of his heart
Made him be true unto a high ideal
He gave his fair young life—to make it real.

And while the zephyrs whisper round his tomb,
His name is honored near his well-loved home,
That spot is sacred now as Chapman Square
In honor of our hero over there.

HARTNETT SQUARE

In Memory of Corporal William F. Hartnett.

When all the world was young and life was fair
With flowers of promise blooming everywhere,
When morning was a welcome glad surprise,
And earth was foretaste of a paradise.

He heard the call from far across the sea,
From heroes who had borne the agony
For many a weary sad and hopeless year,
He heard the call—and quickly answered "here."

On fields of strife he bravely found his place,
A benefactor of the human race,
An emblem of supreme self-sacrifice!
That right might win—for him was all suffice.

He gave his fair young life for you and me,
To keep alive the torch of Liberty!
And while our Starry Banner floats on high,
The memory of his deeds will never die.

Another of Mrs. Armstrong's poems, written, she says, for anyone whose boy is "Somewhere in France," follows:

SOMEWHERE IN FRANCE.

Somewhere in France, upon the honor field,
Your brave young boy his life did freely yield
I fain would place a garland o'er his bier
Bearing the words "a hero slumbers here",
Though but a youth he heard his country's call
And freely offered, yes, and gave his all!

You did not realize when you saw him go
That you would have to bear this weight of woe,
You thought to loan him for a little while
And dreamed to see again his pleasant smile—
And feel the pressure of his loving arms,
When gentle peace had silenced war's alarms.

Somewhere in France among the mighty dead
They found your boy . . . his spirit pure had fled
Back to the Giver to the realms of Peace,
Far from earth's strife where toil and sorrows cease.
There you will meet him when your journey's o'er
In realms of bliss to dwell forevermore.

Upon the bosom of fair France he lies,
While overhead the flag of freedom flies!
'Twas such as he kept that dear flag in air
Through war's dark night when cannon loud did blare,
He held his post and won a victory!
But did not live the happy time to see.

Lover of peace he bravely faced the strife,
And to the cause he freely gave his life.
And who shall say that he has died in vain?
If through the blood of countless heroes slain
We rid the world of all autocracy
And make it safe for pure democracy.

Fair flowers will bloom above his precious clay,
The Summer winds will o'er their petals play,
The birds will carol their sweet songs again,
But they will sing unto your boy in vain!
His soul has passed beyond the silent sea—
Yet sacred will his memory ever be!

France to the world is as a mighty shrine,
Where thoughts like tendrils ever more will twine;
Pilgrims will gather, and with bated breath
Learn of the struggle between life and death,
And pay their tributes to the heroes brave
Who died the cause of Liberty to save!
Somewhere in France.

SABRA DYER NOW KITCHEN HELPER

"Lady in Sables" Gets Cell Instead of Wedding Bells With Hub Man

Manchester, N. H., Jan. 12.—Sabra B. Dyer of Belfast, Me., erstwhile "Lady of the Sables," has become a "K. P."

Jail cells instead of wedding bells welcomed the young woman, who in the local court was sentenced to six months on a charge of having attempted to pass a bogus check on a Manchester bank.

Justice Oliver W. Branch of the Superior Court refused to heed pleas of counsel and follow the actions of other justices who placed the girl on probation after her family made restitution to the banks she had victimized.

And so, instead of entering the bonds of matrimony with John W. Wells of Boston, Miss Dyer entered the jail kitchen and began the study of its mechanics at first hand.

So certain was the young woman that her efforts to avoid punishment for acts would continue to be successful, that Wells was in Manchester waiting to take her to Boston. The marriage was to have been performed that night in the Hotel Lenox, the Bay State having waived the 5-day law.

Leav takings were in order, however, and these were interrupted by E. W. Cochrane, counsel for the girl, who insisted on hurrying Wells so that they would not lose the Boston train.

Miss Dyer was then taken to the Hillsborough County Jail, where she was installed as a helper in the jail kitchen.

She was arrested originally here on information furnished by the Lynn police, and admitted having passed worthless checks in Nashua, Concord and other New England cities. Released under heavy bonds she went to Boston and was arrested for a statutory offence. She was turned over to the Lynn police and given a suspended sentence of one year.

Recipe to Make a Gray Hair Remedy

A. L. Paulson, M. D., who has practiced medicine in New York City for many years, gave out the following recipe for a home-made gray hair remedy: "Gray, streaked or faded hair can be quickly turned black, brown or light brown, whichever shade you desire, by the following remedy that you can make at home:

"Merely get a box of Orlex powder at any drug store. It costs very little and no extras to buy. Dissolve it in 2 oz. of distilled or rain water and comb it through the hair. Full directions for use and a gold bond guarantee come in each box.

"It is safe, does not rub off, is not sticky or greasy, and leaves the hair fluffy. It will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger."—Advertisement.

ASKS SHORT WEEK TO AID STATION AGENTS

Oneco, Ct., Jan. 12.—As a means of assisting fellow telegraph operators and station agents laid off because of the business depression, Charles R. Robidoux, of this town has proposed a six-day week for the agents at the 18 stations on the Providence & Willimantic line. Robidoux, said that by this means three men could be carried on this line alone, and if the plan were adopted throughout the New Haven system many could be helped.

HARRIGAN ASSAILS "BLOOD AND FIRE" IN IRELAND

The Boston American prints today the second in a series of articles on British misgovernment in Ireland by John F. Harrigan of Worcester, State president of the American Association for the Recognition of the Irish Republic. Mr. Harrigan today reviews the record of British "atrocities" in Ireland in the last five years—the murders, deportations, burnings, pillaging, the suppression of civil rights and the substitution of the law of fire and sword

By JOHN F. HARRIGAN.

JOHN F. HARRIGAN.

Crocodile tears accompanied the plaint of the English government a few years ago: "Don't be barking back to old sores; forget the abominable conduct of our predecessors in Ireland; the England of today is a different thing; we mean to set things right."

There were those who heeded the tearful words; many of them have died of broken hearts, but Ireland's heart, if bleeding, is not broken. England has proved that howsoever fair her "diplomatic" skin may be, underneath is the heart of Imperialism, the hand of Cromwell and the brain of Lloyd George.

Hear what old Gaelic chief, Galgacus, shouted against the imperialistic Romans in Britain, "Plunder and rapine and ruin, they call empire, and when they have made a desert, they call it peace."

The present government of England is today the only heir in the world to principles of the pagan Roman empire, of the imperialistic Kaisers of old.

Time and time again Ireland was driven to her knees by this ruthless spirit of British imperialists. Her protest, her absolute refusal to surrender run like a golden thread through Irish literature, poetry and oratory for the past three centuries. The declaration of the Irish Republic is of yesterday, as far as the words are regarded, but the spirit of that proclamation has been in battle since the first foot of land went under the English heel. Here are passages out of that declaration:

"In every generation the Irish people have asserted their right to national freedom and sovereignty. Six times during the past three hundred years they have asserted it in arms. Standing on that fundamental right, and again asserting it in arms in the face of the world we hereby proclaim the Irish Republic as a sovereign independent state and we pledge our lives and the lives of our comrades in arms to the cause of its freedom."

And again: "We declare the right of the people of Ireland to the ownership of Ireland and to the unfettered control of Irish destinies to be sovereign and indefeasible. Long usurpation of that right by a foreign people and government has not extinguished that right."

To read the list of barbaric cruelties that England during the past five years has inflicted upon this just claim of a people is to read the list of indictments that Ireland can furnish in almost every generation since England usurped the country.

Why repeat them when we know the history of these recent years; when we know the camouflage she maintained with pretended conventions about home rule, when she met every forward look of the Irish people with the cry, "Pro-German"; when, in a spirit fiercer than Cromwell's, she crushed into ashes not merely cities like Cork, but villages like Balbriggan; when she made the lawful tenant of a mayor's chair a candidate either for murder in the darkness of night or of starvation in Brixton jail [illegible] forever chime with London Tower or Tyburn Tree.

We need no [illegible] the record of [illegible] England stamped across the [illegible] island. One has but to hearken to the testimony [illegible] witnesses [illegible] these days in America [illegible]

Horrors of English Rule

Why repeat them when we know the history of these recent years; when we know the camouflage she (England) maintained with pretended conventions about home rule, when she met every forward look of the Irish people with the cry, "Pro-German", when, in a spirit fiercer than Cromwell's, she crushed into ashes not merely cities like Cork, but villages like Balbriggan, when she made the lawful tenant of a mayor's chair a candidate either for murder in the darkness of night or of starvation in Brixton jail.—By John F. Harrigan, State President of the American Association for Recognition of the Irish Republic

[illegible] was done a day [illegible] figures the acts of military terrorism between the years 1916 and the first month of 1920; and [illegible] these figures, surely an indictment against England, are official and censored reports, though they fall far short of the complete numbers that might be given.

From 1916 to 1920, court and [illegible] atrocities

Murders	63
Deportations	2,162
Armed assaults on unarmed citizens	809
[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]
Sentences	2,107
Proclamations, suppressions	389
Suppression of newspapers	53
[illegible]	[illegible]
Total	31,453

During the month of February, 1920, the list of atrocities totaled 4,801. And since that date, the press of the world can hardly keep pace with the reports of British tyranny. In the light of the fires that are destroying the cherished homes and industries of a liberty loving people, the world may read the indictment of England's rule of might during the centuries of oppression in Ireland, her early attempts to deprive the Irish people of their lands, and settle them with "planters"; her efforts to strangle the national spirit of the country by crushing all the traditions of Irish language and literature; the strangling of [illegible]

[illegible] worse [illegible] centuries of insolence and insult have driven hatred of British rule into the very [illegible] proscription and expatriation have formed the greatest blot on British fame. There remains the invincible fact that today Ireland is no more reconciled to British rule than she was in the days of Cromwell."

Stocks Rule Lower in New York; Money Opens at 7%; Sterling Exchange Starts Strong

RAIL RALLY IS A FEATURE

Crucible Shows the Largest Morning Loss and Sears-Roebuck Biggest Gain

By W. H. ROSS.
Financial Editor.

Stocks ruled weak in New York at noon, but there were some strong spots in the list. The [illegible] by rails was a morning feature. Most carriers were showing small gains at the end of that period, while oils were at their best [illegible] the second hour. Crucible [illegible] the largest [illegible] and Sears Roebuck made the largest gain. Call money opened at 7 per cent and the first quotation for [illegible] was [illegible] up [illegible] cents. [illegible] stocks was active, first hour transactions aggregating about 300,000 shares.

Crucible was off [illegible] five points at [illegible] Sears Roebuck was [illegible] Mexican Petroleum was [illegible] by [illegible] Pan American was fractionally higher. New Haven [illegible] advanced 2⅛. Among other strong rails were [illegible] Southern Pacific [illegible] & Ohio and [illegible]

REACTED AT START.

Prices were lower when trading began [illegible] the [illegible] for [illegible] thirty [illegible] the most [illegible] shares [illegible] at from [illegible] point [illegible] It dropped almost at once to 102¾ and then rallied to 104. After opening at a point decline Atlantic Gulf dropped two more and then recovered and showed more than three gain. Mexican Petroleum receded two and regained most of the lost. But most changes were small and recoveries slow. As was the case on Tuesday, trading interest was concentrated on comparatively few issues. Rails, sugars, coppers, motors, leathers and tires were quiet with few exceptions, and most of those dealt in were quoted lower. Baldwin was the most active equipment. Studebaker was the weakest motor. By 11 o'clock the list showed general improvement and a number of issues were above the opening level.

BEARS MORE AGGRESSIVE.

Early aggressiveness on the part of bears was attributed to the disappearance of the premium on Crucible and the large supply of Mexican Petroleum. Pressure came from the outside as well as from room traders. One comment from New York reads: "The [illegible] was chiefly [illegible] continued accumulation of stocks by interests that have been identified with the upward movement since the last week of the old year." Brokers in the stock loan market report that, while borrowed stocks have been returned in quantity, the demand this week after the market closed has been as extensive as has been known for years. A quiet accumulation of low-priced railway shares is reported. Roads are expected to make a much better showing as regards earnings as soon as the industrial situation improves. About the time when earnings are expected to reflect higher freight and passenger rates traffic diminished. But high wages and other high operating cost continue.

Cotton Market Opening

New York, Jan. 12.—The cotton market was without much feature at the opening. First prices were [illegible] 8 points higher. Liverpool [illegible] Wall Street and commission houses were the best buyers and the South was among the leading sellers [illegible] of the [illegible] factory messages from Manchester. After ten notices were issued this morning. After the start there was an increase of selling pressure which forced prices off about 13 to 14 points under the [illegible] Opening prices were: Jan., 14.90; March, 15.65; May, 15.90; July, 16.00; Oct. [illegible] Dec. [illegible]

Chicago Grain Market

Chicago, Jan. 12.—Wheat opened ¼c to ⅝c lower and [illegible] started [illegible] lower. Oats were unchanged [illegible] lower. Provisions were [illegible] Wheat—March [illegible] May [illegible] Corn—May 74 [illegible] 71⅛ [illegible] Oats—May 48⅝ [illegible] Jan. 13 [illegible] Jan. 12.00 May [illegible]

COPPERS WEAK IN BOSTON

Local Market Quiet and Irregular; Rails Improve in Forenoon; Curb Is Firmer

The Boston market was irregular at the beginning and throughout the morning but there was improvement in tone before noon. Trading was of moderate volume and without any incident of especial interest. New England rails advanced in the latter part of the first hour, responding to the upward movement of carriers on the New York Exchange. [illegible] were somewhat heavy. Packing issues and motor accessories were steady. Among stocks to advance from one to three points were Boston & Maine common, New Haven, Boston & Maine D and United Drug. Calumet & Hecla receded 4 to 245, while point [illegible] were sustained by Calumet & Arizona, U. S. Smelting and Edison.

[illegible] higher sales included Mohawk, American Sugar, Carson Hill, [illegible] & Co., Gray & Davis and American [illegible] preferred. Among those to suffer small losses were North Butte, Copper Range, Old Dominion, United Shoe, Boston & Maine A and B.

MOST CURB STOCKS UP.

While the Curb market continued quiet and there was no marked change in trading on this exchange, it had a firm tone and most leaders made gains. Active issues at the outset were Boston & Montana, First National, Mutual and Eureka. Among those to begin with gains were Albany, Divide, Allied Oil, First National and Merrimac Development. Weak stocks at the start were Boston & Montana, Eureka and Imperial. Many issues were unchanged.

At the end of an hour Boston & Montana was up 1 cent at 41 cents, First National 21¼ cents at 1 1-16 and Mutual 3 cents at 58 cents. Eureka had recovered its loss and Allied Oil and Merrimac Development had lost their gains.

BOSTON FINANCIAL NOTES.

Auto Production Last Year

Although the manufacturing of motor vehicles was drastically curtailed toward the close of 1920, last year was the high record period for such production. There were 1,875,000 passenger cars and 340,000 trucks made, a total of 2,215,000 as compared with 1,974,016 for 1919. The later was the best previous year.

Railway Items

Canadian Pacific's gross increased $182,000 in the first week of January.

Interstate Commerce Commission authority has been asked by the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis Railway to issue $495,000 of 6 per cent. [illegible] dated April 1, 1920.

The New York Central has [illegible] to the Interstate Commerce Commission for a government loan amounting to $6,77[illegible],887 for [illegible] years to be used for new equipment and additional transportation facilities.

Increases for November reported by the Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis road were $4,298,453 in operating revenue and $2,783,714 in operating income.

LIST RISES ONE TO NINE POINTS

Shipping Shares Are in Greater Demand and Score Substantial Gains

By BROADAN WALL.
Registered U. S. Patent Office.

New York, Jan. 12.—The bear contingent had a bad session yesterday. Their predicament was made worse by the fact that call money outside of the New York Stock Exchange was as low as 4½ per cent. New high prices for this movement were made throughout the session, the gains ranging from one to more than nine points, the maximum advance being in Crucible Steel.

Members in the Crucible Steel pool decided that yesterday would be an opportune time for the enforcement of deliveries of stock which they had been lending to the shorts. To expedite the delivery of the shares they raised the premium to borrowers of the stock to 1 per cent., which means that a person borrowing the shares had to pay a premium of $1 a share per day.

Many of the shorts could not answer the call, so the stock was bought in for cash. A substantial amount of stock was bought in this manner and found registration on the ticker tape at a price one point above the prices paid for shares to be delivered in the regular way.

A big short interest is declared to exist in General Electric. It exists largely because of the selling of the stock by important people following the announcement of the new stock offering by the company.

BOSTON HAS 15 NATIONAL BANKS

There are now fifteen national banks in Boston as compared with fifty-seven twenty-five years ago. There are eleven members of the local clearing house and with their capital combined is $42,200,000 whereas the fifty-three it had in 1895 were capitalized at $51,[illegible],000.

But the eleven banks, with only four-fifths as much capital, now report [illegible] of $ [illegible]4,041,000, as against $173,053,[illegible] a quarter of a century ago, or 243 per cent. increase; deposits of $[illegible], as against $[illegible],395,000 or 226 per cent., while clearing house exchanges for a year now total $18,816,775,726, as against $4,757,684,594, or 275 per cent. expansion.

WANTS PEOPLE TO VOTE ON FEDERAL AMENDMENTS

Representative Keniston of Boston has filed with the clerk of the House a resolve that the Legislature shall urge upon Congress an amendment to the Federal Constitution so that proposed amendments in the future shall be passed upon directly by vote of the people, instead of by the Legislatures or constitutional conventions in the various States.

Dye Combine Dividend

According to a forecast from New York the common stock of the Allied Chemical & Dye Corporation will be placed on a $6 annual basis at a meeting of the directors which probably will be held in March. It is expected that the dividend of $1.50 quarterly will be paid. The Allied Chemical & Dye Corporation is a consolidation of Barrett Co., General Chemical Co., Semet-Solvay Co. and National Aniline Co.

Treasury Silver Buying

On Monday the U. S. Treasury bought 650,000 ounces of silver at $1 an ounce for the Philadelphia mint. This brings total purchases under the Pittman act up to 31,695,000 ounces.

COPPER QUIET, PRICE FIRMER

Estimate European Nations Bought 10,000,000 Pounds at 13 Cents

While the copper market is still quiet, the price of metal is firmer. It is reported that no copper is now obtainable under 12¾ cents a pound for prompt shipment, while 13 cents is asked for the first quarter. One large producer is refusing to sell for less than 13¼.

There is more domestic inquiry and it is estimated that about 10,000,000 pounds has been bought recently by English, French and German consumers at around 13 cents a pound.

Investors Hold U. S. Steel

The common stock of the U. S. Steel Corporation is a favorite today with investors. Their holdings at the end of 1920 totaled 3,803,463 shares or 74.83 per cent. of the total issue. Brokers' holdings were 1,279,557 shares, or 25.17 per cent. Foreign holdings were 292,835 shares, compared with 323,485 shares three months previous.

Harvard's hockey team has a task before it tonight

It encounters the B A A septet, and while the latter organization has had less opportunity to practice, it boasts a remarkably fast and able set of players, whose individual ability and years of experience should stand in good stead once the clash gets underway

King's College gave Harvard a tough time of it for two-thirds of the game they played last week, only to slump terribly in the final third of the contest during which period Harvard rolled up its big score. In that game Harvard had to face but one fast forward while the defence offered by the Canadians was scarcely worthy of the name. Tonight Harvard will face four fast forwards and a set of substitute forwards almost equally speedy whose [illegible] defence it meets will prove a real defence and if Harvard wins the Harvard team indeed can be regarded as one of the most promising ever to sport the Crimson.

Referees' Meeting to Precede Hockey Game

Six o'clock tonight is the time scheduled for the hockey interpretation meeting and all the [illegible] officials are expected to be on hand

One of the announced purposes of the meeting is to eliminate the continuous use of the whistle, it being the contention that the stopping of the play tends to detract from the game

Just how the officials are concerned however is a somewhat clouded issue. Hockey is supposed to be played according to the rules and if players persist in infringing upon the hockey laws such infringements should be penalized by the referee, and in most instances the play must be stopped for such penalties

Eliminating the use of the whistle therefore would seem essentially up to the players and the coaches rather than the referee. Coaches should thoroughly instruct their charges in the rules and impress upon them the necessity of conducting their play according to the rules. Were the players to comply to such instruction—and the coach is in a position to force them to—games would continue without the constant interruptions made necessary because of rule infringements

Boston College-Tech Game Promises Good Hockey

Hockey of an entirely different brand than that offered by the teams last year is expected when Fred [illegible] B C team clashes with [illegible] Engineers tomorrow night

Last year the contest which was won by B C, was anything but pleasing to hockey lovers for while each team boasted considerable talent, the players seemed more interested in slashing and smashing each other than in skilfully carrying the puck up the ice for drives at the opposing goals

This year the rival coaches are insisting their men play hockey. B C started off its season with a triumph over Bates and has indicated real ability in practice matches with the Shoe Trades and B A A aggregations. Tech lost a close game to King's, since which time several promising players have been added to its squad and very capable practice matches staged against Harvard and the B. A. A. And tomorrow night's game, with the rivalry of the teams and the cheering sections coloring the issue, should prove well worth the watching

Ralph Winsor Again Is B. A. A. Coach

Ralph Winsor, former Harvard and B A A player and coach, in whose honor the new hockey trophy has been named again is handling the destinies of the Unicorn hockey team. Whether temporarily or permanently has yet to be learned. But after spending the past two weeks aiding Bill Claflin in developing the Crimson varsity, he left that organization to prepare the B. A. A. outfit for tonight's clash with the Cambridge collegians.

MARANVILLE NOT YET TRADED

New York, Chicago and Pittsburgh Figure in Proffered Trades for the Rabbit

Chicago, Jan. 12 Rabbit Maranville is still a member of the Boston National baseball team despite strenuous endeavors on the part of the New York, Chicago and Pittsburgh managements to pry the midget shortstop loose from the Braves payroll

According to one report the Rabbit was to go to the Pirates while Terry of the Cubs was to become the property of the Braves. Exactly what the Pirates were going to do for the Cubs in the proposed deal was not made public, but it is likely that Johnny Evers demanded a plenty, so much in fact that he halted the transfer altogether

Giants Want Rabbit to Use in Trade

Another story ran to the effect that the New York Giants would give four players and much cash for Maranville and then use the midget in a trade with St Louis to acquire Hornsby. Still another version had McGraw and company turning over the midget to Cincinnati for Groh

But the Rabbit is still a member of the Braves, though President George Washington Grant has his price and like Barkis is willing

The war horses of baseball have been parked in the basement along with the home brew, and the proprietors of the game get together today in a final love feast, after which they will adjourn to let the bad players have a chance to see their names in the public print

Everybody Ready to Bow to Landis

Everybody has subscribed to the reign of Judge Landis, and everybody seems happy. The major-minor agreement has been perfected. Such leagues as wish the draft may subscribe to the same and those who do not wish [illegible]. In event a league does not allow the draft it cannot draft from leagues of lower classifications. The amended system also provides that the minors have complete charge of their internal affairs.

Claims involving more than $300 or the free agency of a player go direct to Judge Landis. The advisory committee will consist of four men, two from the minors. The National Association will draw up its own form of contract and it will contain a clause binding the player to abide by the decisions of the Judge. The pact will be in force only during the incumbency of Judge Landis. In event of his resignation or death or the expiration of his term of seven years they will have to start in all over again

Player Limits Set by Minor Leaguers

The minors did a lot of work on their own regulations. It was agreed the majors will draft from October 15 to 20, while the minors do business from October 22. The drafting used to be done in September. Player limits were established as follows: Class AA leagues 25 in season, 35 out, class A 20 and 30, class B 16 and 20, class C 14 and 18, class D 14 and 18. There is no salary limit in the double A, but the A is $4,200 per month, B. $3 200, C, $2 [illegible], D, $2,400. Suitable penalties are provided for violations, and the president of the association is empowered to enforce fines.

Draft prices were suggested at AA $5,000; A. $4,000, B. $2 600, C $1 500, D. $1,000. Classifications were changed so that 1,000,000 inhabitants in a circuit entitles to A rating, [illegible] to B, and 150,000 to C. Draft prices may be changed by consent of majors and minors, but classification requirements are decided by the minors alone.

Stories of Famous Fights

Jack O'Brien's Greatest Fight

This is the seventh of a series of "Finishes of Old-Time Fights," written by authorities on pugilism who were famous in their days.

Today we cover the Stanley Ketchel-"Philadelphia Jack" O'Brien fight it was fought in the old National Sporting Club, on East Twenty fourth street, March 26, 1909

Although O'Brien lay unconscious at the end of the tenth and final round he was not technically knocked out. Referee Tim Hurst had counted only four seconds when the final bell was sounded. He might have counted a hundred and O'Brien would not have been able to get upon his feet

A fallen man is given by Marquis of Queensberry rules ten seconds of grace when knocked down, and Ketchel therefore did not get credit of a knockout.

By Charles E. Van Loan

Wipe the slate. Philadelphia Jack O'Brien is now a member in good standing. We love him for the one good, honest licking which he took last night at the National Club, and it was handed to him by a youth from a sawmill town who never heard of the doctrine of Individual Supremacy, and would probably think it was something good to eat

For several years Jack mixed commercialism with his art and lost his yellow card of membership. He became a joke and worse. Last night he put every ounce left in his body into an attempt to fight himself back into public favor, and the result was a battle which sent a great crowd out into the streets speechless. Many a man has waited ten years to see just one great fight like that one last night—and then missed it by staying away

Jack Spoke Wise Words

And Ketchel? A fighter pure and simple. He has nothing with which to deceive either his opponent or the public. He is the type seldom found in a champion—a knockout fighter without the first idea of cleverness. Once when "Philadelphia Jack" was dazzling Western society he used to say that there was nothing so complex as the intensely simple. Last night he found that there was some truth in that epigram.

O'Brien was whipped into unconsciousness by a boy who does not know the first principles of boxing, and when the final bell rang the old campaigner and winner of a hundred battles was flat on his back in his own corner, with his battered head resting in his resin box

Jack Came Out Staggering

O'Brien came staggering out of his corner in the tenth and began to hug Ketchel like a long-lost brother. The Michigan boy pounded him out of the clinches with right uppercuts and drove him around the ring, running and covering and doubling in his tracks. But the chase could not last. Once more Ketchel drove the right hand to the head and O'Brien reeled and dropped to the floor

The house was in an uproar, and O'Brien seemed to be listening as he waited for the count. He took his time, and, rising, backed rapidly away, making weak attempts to stop Ketchel's rush with his straight left. But all the snap had gone out of his punches

Ketchel was on top of him all the time, hammering away with both hands. Another smashing punch found the mark, and O'Brien dropped beside the ropes. He turned his head and looked down into the faces of the men who were cheering for Ketchel. O'Brien opened his mouth and spat with a contemptuous grimace. It is hard to blame him for this, for it was the only way he could show his resentment

Holding to the ropes with one hand, O'Brien watched the referee's lips, and as he said "Nine" O'Brien pulled himself to his feet and backed away along the ropes toward his own corner. Ketchel rushed him again, missed a few swings and then, measuring O'Brien with a full-arm left, sent it home on the point of the chin

Jack's hands fell at his sides, and his whole body stiffened as he toppled backward. His head struck in the resin box with a crash; one bounce, and he lay still, with his arms at his side and his eyes closed.

He was still there when the bell rang.

Harvard Varsity Five Defeats Freshmen

In a nip and tuck affray, the Harvard varsity five nosed out the freshmen, 35 to 28 on the former's court. Henry Tyson, varsity centre, and Arthur Gordon, freshman captain, made six goals each. Roscoe Fitts dropped in four and Captain Tolbert added three more. Harvard plays its third regular game tomorrow afternoon, meeting Middlebury in Hemenway gymnasium at 4 o'clock

IRISH BILLY GREEN TACKLES YOUNG SACCO

"Irish Billy" Green of Chicago will begin a new ring surge when he collides with Jimmy (Young) Sacco of East Boston in a ten-round bout at Marlboro Friday night. Green is the featherweight champion of the Middle West and if successful in his encounter with Sacco will try to get a match with the winner of the Chaney-Martin mill. The Chicago boy is in better condition than when he made his debut here and will not lack for backers Friday evening. As Sacco is also a tidy glove wielder, the fans should witness a stirring engagement.

A Warning and a Message to Men 40 Years of Age

Heavyweight All Worsted 16 oz.
Staple Blue, Black and Brown
SUIT TO ORDER $17.50

The war is over, and the cause of so many colds and sicknesses during the past three or four years I attribute to the fact that men have been wearing 12-oz. heavyweight (?) suitings, and when a man reaches the age of forty he can ill-afford to take these chances with his life.

I have just purchased 175 pieces of absolutely all worsted Wanskuk staples. These goods weigh 16-oz. full. I will guarantee same for shape and wear, and when I advise these suitings for men 40 years or over, I suggest for the young man in knickers who goes without an overcoat that this would be the fabric for durability and service and would help avoid beastly colds for the next four months.

In the year 1916 Heavyweight Suitings meant from 16-oz. to the yard up. I defy any customer to go to any ready-made clothier or wholesale clothier and find a range of suitings that will weigh as much as 16 oz. to the yard.

1920 heavyweights weigh from 12 to 14 oz.

A Romance of Vivid Personality and Swift and Exciting Adventure

CHAPTER XXXIV.

Jennie Thinks It Over.

IN the days that followed—in the wonderful [illegible] that was hers—as she [illegible] about other homes yet more wonderful in which she was always welcome—Jennie was feverishly thinking—thinking! This world was hers—she had worked for it—she had won it. Never before had it seemed to her so brilliant, so desirable.

But always she was thinking of what she should do about Harry—what should be the answer she had promised to send back to Uncle George and her father. This was the beginning of the period when the soul of Jennie went through its sorest trial—that young soul as it was moulded and directed by her long childhood down at the Pekin, by her years of transformation at Braithewood Hall, by her father's point of view and his [illegible] love for her, by her own ambitions, and lately, by the life of the upper level where she now lived. But she took no time for the searching of her own soul, for a careful study of the fundamental materials of her own being. Had she done so, a decision might have been simpler.

Her thoughts were forever swerving around to Kenneth, and were forever [illegible] themselves. If she went to Harry's rescue, Kenneth would, of course, find out; and if she did not he might find out anyway. Kenneth, in his relation with her fate, was inextricably connected with Harry's case—and yet to her he was also an entirely separate problem.

She had been strong, she had kept her nerve, she had managed life—and yet, despite all her present efforts at self-[illegible] her fear kept on mounting [illegible] within [illegible] was a [illegible] subsiding [illegible]. And the heart of [illegible] ever the same. Suppose Kenneth should find out? And what would Kenneth [illegible]?

Her concern was [illegible] because she loved him. She knew no more now whether she really loved Kenneth than she had known when he had proposed to her that night on the [illegible] at Silver Bluffs—she had been far too busy to turn an analytical eye upon her affections. But she admired him as she had [illegible], and they had had the excitement of a dazzling rise together. The great central cause of her fear was, that though she had builded for herself so wonderful a career she had [illegible] it entirely upon Kenneth. She was now reaping the consequences of the fundamental idea by which she had thought to hold him to herself—her plan to push him to the top of the business world, her plan to win to the social crest and carry him with her. Despite his personal ambition, she had been careful to make herself "Mrs. Kenneth Harrison." Yes, all the splendid structure of her life was builded on Kenneth!

Her highly excited mind was forever visualizing the moment of exposure. She could see his horrified amazement, could see his face tighten with what [illegible]

This became an obsession with her. She waited with [illegible] apprehension every home-coming of Kenneth and her nerves jumped at every unexpected [illegible]. [illegible] this growing apprehension was incited to some degree by a change she noted in Kenneth himself. On the very evening when Slim had carried her off down to the Pekin, she had noticed the beginning of a different Kenneth. He came home late that night, and was distraught, nervous; once or twice she caught his eyes on her with a narrowed, fixed look. Her heart jumped wildly, did he suspect?—had some hint been given him?—or did he already know? Again and again in the next day or so she caught him eyeing her with that same strange, questioning look; always, when so caught, he was quick to start a conversation upon some matter of no consequence.

She Believed Him

One evening when she surprised such a look upon his face, she determined to have an end to the suspense. She gripped what remained of her old courage in her two hands, and squarely asked him:

"What's the matter, Kenneth?"

"Why?"

"You were looking at me so queerly."

He laughed, it was rather a forced laugh. "If I looked queer I guess it was just the result of unconsciously carrying business in my head after business hours. Have you noticed the market lately?"

"No."

"It's in an awful mess. Prices jumping in every direction. Nobody knows where he stands. So if I seem to worry, that's all there is to it."

"Are you sure, Kenneth?"

"That's absolutely all there is to it, Jennie. Honest."

She believed him because she wanted to believe him—though she was not certain that she did believe him. However, whatever of belief she did have was enough to sway her fluctuating soul to a decision in regard to Harry Edwards, she could not give up all this brilliance she had worked so hard to win! She simply could not! Something would turn up before his trial that would save Harry, of course it would—it simply had to!

And that same evening, disguising her handwriting, but using the [illegible] next morning Uncle George went down to the Pekin and showed it to [illegible] Jerry.

[illegible]

And from the train he went on down to [illegible] of prison had made him [illegible] bleached to a more [illegible]

"You know Uncle George I never [illegible]" he said.

[illegible] for these low, soothing sounds [illegible] Then Harry [illegible] and with [illegible] fitting last words.

"Of course [illegible] You and Jerry [illegible] for me. I don't [illegible] want her to [illegible]

When Uncle George turned [illegible] that erect figure [illegible] and steady [illegible] life [illegible] tainly queer.

CHAPTER XXXV

How Kenneth Took the News

THE end of April arrived, with a few days that were [illegible] to Silver [illegible] Sumter, and then there came a morning when Kenneth's bearing at leave-taking was unusually disturbing. He said good-bye, started out of the [illegible] then turned at the door and gazed at Jennie with questioning eyes.

"Jennie," he said abruptly, "Jennie"—

Her heart leaped [illegible] to speak [illegible] "Yes, Kenneth. What is it?"

"I wonder [illegible] I wonder"—and again he stopped.

"Go on. What [illegible]"

"Oh, nothing," he replied with an abrupt change of manner. "Just take good care of your cold, and, much as Mrs. Shipman's friendship means to us, don't wear yourself [illegible]"

Kenneth said good-bye again, and this time went out. Jennie knew well that to give her that advice about her cold, which was hardly a cold at all, was not what had been in Kenneth's mind. [illegible] was brooding [illegible] than ever [illegible] days grew suddenly [illegible] There rushed into her [illegible] with some one — at [illegible] mere words would be a relief [illegible] her way was not [illegible]

And then she realized that of all her many friends of the great world there were none with whom she dared talk over such a matter as this; certainly not with Mr. Shipman, and not even with Sue and Mrs. Harrison. Amid all the glory she had won she felt completely isolated; [illegible] went [illegible] to the person who was most concerned in her success—her father.

Yes, she had to see her father! She considered when and how and where she should meet him. There was the luncheon, her last affair of the season, Mrs. Shipman was giving [illegible] of the past year; that would last until three at least. And then at half past three Mrs. Harrison and Sue were coming in to [illegible] over [illegible] that engagement; they would stay until probably five. From five until half-past six—half past six was Kenneth's [illegible] period for seeing her father.

But where? A danger [illegible] came to her, [illegible] her. When [illegible] always [illegible] and that risk would be [illegible] hardly greater here than elsewhere. It could be easily managed. After thinking a few moments she had Uncle George on the wire and, [illegible] Black Jerry was to [illegible] at five that afternoon in the guise of a cabinet maker, to mend a refractory drawer of a writing desk in her private sitting-room.

Mrs. Shipman's "brides' luncheon" was a very splendid affair; it had the distinction which characterized all of Mrs. Shipman's functions. And Jennie, despite her long mental strain, was at her best, perhaps the feverish tensity under which she had been living was responsible for her high spirits that afternoon.

"I DON'T misunderstand ye," answered McCrae. He [illegible] forward [illegible] from [illegible] his steel spectacles with a [illegible]

"And I am going to d scourge a [illegible] which is a [illegible] of society." [illegible] went on, "the spectacle of which turns [illegible] of men and women [illegible] Christ today. I have [illegible] at last how some of these persons [illegible] make their money, and are [illegible] it. And I am going to let [illegible] know since they have [illegible] in their own sins, since [illegible] have denied the Christian [illegible] [illegible] to [illegible]

"Mr. Parr?" McCrae explained.

"Yes," said the rector [illegible], "and with a touch of [illegible] Mr. Parr [illegible] Mr. Parr when I shall [illegible] in [illegible]"

"Ye'll tell him to his face. [illegible] the only way."

McCrae had risen. A remarkable transformation had come over the [illegible] he was [illegible] of some Covenanter [illegible] eager going into battle. And his voice shook with excitement.

"Ye [illegible] on me, Mr. Hodder," he cried. "These many years [illegible] many years I've [illegible] what ye see now. But I was [illegible] Aye, I've waited [illegible] set foot in this church I knew what was going on inside of ye [illegible] it was just [illegible] myself [illegible] I hoped I [illegible] to it."

[illegible] Scotchman moved [illegible] way, and an extraordinary [illegible] on Hodder himself, and his own emotion was so inexpressibly stirred that he kept silence a moment to control it. This proof of the truth of his theory in regard to McCrae he found overwhelming.

"But you said nothing, McCrae," he began presently. "I felt all along that you knew what was wrong—if you had only spoken."

"I could not," said McCrae. "I gave ye my word I tried, but I just [illegible] not. Many's the time I wanted to—but I said to myself when I looked at you, that it will come, and better than ye can say it. And ye have made me see more than I saw, Mr. Hodder, already ye [illegible] Ye've got the whole thing in [illegible] and I only had apart of it. It's because ye're the bigger man of the two."

"You thought I'd come to it?" demanded Hodder, as though the full forces of this insight had just struck him.

"Well," said McCrae, "I hoped. It seemed [illegible] at ye, your true nature—what was by rights inside of ye. That's the best explaining I can do. And I call to mind that [illegible] to [illegible] about not making [illegible] the masses Christians [illegible] was what started me to thinking."

"And you used me," returned the rector, "[illegible] welcome some of them would be in Mr. Parr's pew."

[illegible] the [illegible] character [illegible] to see how deep ye were getting in with him."

Hodder did not reply to this. He had himself risen and stood looking at McCrae, filled with a new thought.

"There is one thing I should like to say to you which is very difficult, McCrae, but I have no doubt you see the matter as clearly as I do. In making this fight, I have no one but myself to consider. I am a single man——"

"Ye'll not need to go on," answered McCrae, with an odd mixture of sternness and gentleness in his voice. "I'll stand and fall with ye, Mr. Hodder. Before I ever thought of the church I learned a trade as a boy in Scotland. I'm not a bad carpenter. And if worse comes to worse I've an idea I can make as much with my hands as I make in the ministry."

The smile they exchanged across the table sealed the compact between them.

II

The electric car which carried [illegible] with the [illegible] shot westward like a meteor through the night. And now that the hour was actually at hand, it seemed to Hodder that he was absurdly unprepared to meet it. New and formidable aspects, hitherto unthought of, rose in his mind, and the figure of Eldon Parr loomed to Brobdingnagian proportions as he approached it. In spite of his determination, the life-blood of his confidence ebbed, a sense of the power and might of the man who had now become his adversary increased, and that apprehension of the impact of the great banker's personality, the cutting edge with the vast achievements wedged in behind it, each adding weight and impetus to its momentum—the apprehension he had felt in less degree on the day of the first meeting and which had almost immediately evaporated—surged up in him now. His fear was lest the charged atmosphere of the banker's presence might deflect his own hitherto clear perception of true worth. He dreaded, once in the midst of those disturbing currents, a bungling presentation of the cause which inspired him, and which he knew to be righteousness itself.

Suddenly his mood shifted, betraying still another weakness, and he saw Eldon Parr, suddenly, vividly—more vividly, indeed than ever before—in the shades of the hell of his loneliness. And pity welled up, drowning the image of incarnate greed and selfishness and lust for wealth and power. The unique pathos of his former relationship with the man reasserted itself, and Hodder was conscious once more of the dependence which Eldon Parr had had on his friendship.

The Force of Example

By Dr. Wm. A. McKeever

Professor in the University of Kansas and an Educator of Nation-wide Repute.

I KNOW an ex-Governor who ten years ago went up with a flash. He was said to be charming and brilliant and was a great favorite on public platforms and at banquets. But his bright star dimmed fast after his term closed, and he now attracts little attention for what he is and holds little of public reverence for anything he has ever accomplished.

I know a Sunday school secretary who was recently honored by being sent half way around the globe to attend a world convention of his colleagues. Twenty odd years ago this good man entered upon his duties in a very humble missionary spirit. There seemed then so little ahead of him except hard work and poor pay, but he kept at his post with the passion of one climbing a mountain in order to obtain a glorious view from the top.

Today this man's name is one to conjure by throughout every city and village in his home State. When he calls for helpers they are most likely to come. When he is announced as a speaker the people usually turn out generously. When he takes a position on a moral question, other men are inclined to try to pull up their judgments to meet his standards.

Now, here is a moral to work out in behalf of your boy. The flashy personality goes up like a rocket but comes down like a dead stick. The headlines and the loud applause acclaiming him may be merely the manipulations of a bunch of politicians.

It is highly advisable that a youth be taught to scan and scrutinize the mere grandstander. What is his scheme? What motive seems to prompt him? What is he trying to force upon the public mind as a new ideal of progress? What place will his platform probably take in the history of his State or nation? Finally, does he seem genuine?

Then apply these same questions to a man like the missionary mentioned above. With what patience, forbearance, vision has he worked? What real progress does his work show during its two decades? Does he seem happy, high minded, sure of himself and reasonably prosperous in a material way?

There are thousands in this country like the silent man, more or less self-effaced and yet going straight on toward the mark of an inspired calling. But they are not good advertisers like the "sparkling" politician. What I desire to urge here is the necessity for parents to help their children to see the golden worth in the study of unselfish and inspired personality.

The superficial observation of the young is prone to overlook them. They must be made a sort of discovery for each youthful aspirant for public attention and approval.

Point out the good man, enumerate his deeds, extol his virtues one by one, remind your boy how he perhaps labored on for years through indifference, scorn or disapproval, and at length triumphed. Your words will thus prove to be seed sown upon good ground, and perhaps years after you uttered them they may bring forth good fruit, some twenty some, seventy and some a hundred fold.

CHAPTER XXXIX.

"I DID not expect to come to Newport at all this season," Mortimer Lawrence told Mary as he drew her out of the crowd to a nook on the veranda just back of the rear door of the dance hall—"and I must go back to New York early to-morrow afternoon. But, last evening I chanced to meet Peter—or Pierre, if you prefer," with a little smile—"and he told me you were here—and well—I thought I would run up for one day. I hope you do not mind?"

"No," she said softly, "it is pleasant to see you." Under his influence the heat of her indignation had died. She was only conscious of her pleasure in his presence. Mortimer spoke eagerly as he noted her gentle manner.

"Pierre told me that he had not seen you for some weeks—that he knew very little of how things were going with you. He also said"—with a palpable effort to be frank—"that your mother had invited Sheldon up here for this week-end. And—well—I just came on here to find out how everything is. To be honest, Pierre doubted if you and your mother"——

Mary interrupted him. "We did not invite Mr. Sheldon here," impulsively. "But he asked to be allowed to bring me to this dance, and I accepted. He has been a kind friend to me."

The man nodded comprehendingly. "I know it. I know that you and he are friends—and for a while I fancied — I wondered if—oh, I can't say it now! But all I ask is the opportunity to tell you the truth and to learn it from you. When may I"——

"Why Mortimer! Here you are! How glad I am to see you, dear boy!"

A Guilty Feeling.

The harsh tones were Irene's, and as he heard them Mortimer Lawrence wheeled about with a start to the open door whence they came. His sister and mother were hurrying towards him, followed by Riginald Haight.

"This is hardly a kind way for you to treat us, Mortimer," Mrs. Lawrence reproved as her son came forward to greet her.

Mary shrank back in the shadow. She had a guilty feeling—such as she used to have when, as a child, her mother found her playing with some little girl with whom she had been forbidden to associate. She had an absurd desire to climb over the veranda-railing against which she leaned, and disappear in the darkness.

"My dear Mother," Mortimer spoke respectfully, but there was a ring of annoyance in his voice. "I have been here but five minutes. And I could not get a glimpse of you in that crowded room."

"No, mother, he could not," Irene interposed. "He hardly got into the hall before Mary met him, and," with a little laugh, "bore him off."

"It was I who bore her off——" Mortimer began hotly, but his sister cut him short.

"Dear boy, don't get peeved at a passing joke. I am sure Mary understands that I was just in fun. She has acquired the right that every engaged or married girl has of taking the initiative in talking to any man she likes without any suspicion of her showing favoritism to him. But I did not know this until this evening."

Mary caught her breath. Surely Irene could not mean——

"I do not undersand!" she protested.

Oh, have I spoken too soon?" Irene asked. "Was it to be kept quiet longer? I am sorry if I—Ah, here is Mr. Sheldon now, with your mother! But I shall say nothing more until you tell me I may, dear Mary. Good evening, Mrs. Throckmorton! I have just been guilty of a dreadful break. Make my peace with your daughter, please. I did not intend to betray a secret. Lewis," smiling at Sheldon, "you make my peace with Mary, too, won't you?"

"I hardly think," Sheldon said, "that it is necessary."

"I hardly think it is myself!" Again Irene gave vent to a disagreeable laugh. "But we must not detain you. You said Mary was tired and you were in a hurry to get her home.

Mortimer Borne Off.

"Mortimer, dear, will you take Mother out to supper now? I notice that most of the guests are going into the dining room. Good night!" with a nod over her shoulder as she took her escort's arm and started towards the door.

Mrs. Lawrence gave her son no time for a word alone with anyone but herself.

"Good-night!" he said to Mary, even while his mother clung to him. Then in a low voice.—"If I was mistaken in what I started to say just now, forgive me. I did not understand. I wonder if I do now!"

"There is nothing to forgive." Mary said nonchantly. Her eyes were hard and she held her head very high. "As to whether you understood or not—really, what difference does it make?"

Irene's gaze was fixed upon her from the doorway, where she had paused to wait for her mother and brother—Irene, who had wished that Mary Throckmorton would let Mortimer alone! Mary would show her that she had nothing to fear. Why had she, even for a moment, yielded to the charm of Mortimer's manner? He was under his mother's and sister's rule, and they were "afraid" Mary would force herself into their magic circle! They need not fear!

"Good night!" she nodded to the quartet, as she moved away with her mother and Sheldon. "You return to New York early tomorrow afternoon?" to Mortimer. "As I mean to sleep until noon-time I shall not see you again. Once more good night!"

Mary Throckmorton and her mother were in their rooms at the hotel when Mary spoke with startling vehemence.

"I want to leave here next week," she exclaimed.

"Next week?" her mother gasped.

"Yes," Mary said decidedly. "I hate the place! But—listen—I propose to give one sumptuous dinner before I go."

To Be Continued.

Vows for the New Year

ARE THEY ALWAYS MADE TO BE BROKEN?

By Beatrice Fairfax.

Who Occupies a Unique Position in the Writing World as an Authority on the Problems of Girls

> "What I aspired to be
> And was not, comforts me."
>
> • • •
>
> "'Tis not what man does which exalts him, but what man would do."
>
> • • •
>
> "Better have failed in the high aim, as I,
> Than vulgarly in the low aim succeed"——

• • •

ALL these lines are from the great poet-philosopher, Robert Browning. I give them to you to think about as we start a discussion of the New Year's vows so many of us make and so few succeed in keeping. I am writing this for all of you, but the response is to the cry one man sends me:

"What am I to do? Every year I vow that I will conquer my besetting sin, which is the sad one of drinking. I thought weakly that prohibition would save me. But the farce continues, and I find myself imbibing the store I weakly laid up and drinking the lavish refreshments my friends now offer. I can't conquer this terrible taste. I try and try.

"And every year I make a vow at New Year's—and break it just when I'm beginning to think I have a hold on myself. I'm weak in nothing else — but this terrible taste. But I'm beginning to think I'm weak all through if I can go on promising myself to conquer and failing to keep my word. Shall I make my usual New Year's vow, knowing in my heart that I cannot keep it? R. D."

Go on promising yourself that you will conquer, R. D., for some day I believe you will live up to that bright moment of promising.

To have a cruel weakness is sad enough. Not to aspire to conquer that weakness is, however, fully as terrible, and perhaps in its final results even more tragic than the fault itself. For to conquer a failing is to rise above it to even greater strength than can be known by one who has not achieved it for himself in an agony of striving.

The only tragedy of weakness is to sink under it and to submit to it. As long as a man fights his besetting sin it cannot conquer him. Submission is slavish and beastial.

Better to promise reform a thousand times and fail than never to try.

I know how weakening it is to break a promise made to yourself. I believe firmly that only one thing so saps the fine upstanding force of a character as to fail self again and again. But that failure is not as bad as the submissive recognition of weakness that doesn't make any effort to turn victory into defeat.

The man who has the courage to go on trying has the beginning of strength. I believe—as I believe in the sun that rises each day to greet us—that anyone who has the glorious determination to pick himself up after each defeat and make a new effort is going eventually to reach his goal.

What's the good of vows that are broken? Nothing, of course, compared with the power of those that are kept. The point of New Year's vows is to keep them within the realms of plausibility. Set yourself a task of conquering yourself not for the year stretching so long ahead and seeming impossible to meet—but for a month that is to be fought through with strength that shall not fail.

At the end of that month make another vow. And after each month of success—another vow. And the year will come when anyone who has fought to conquer himself and to win his way to victory over his own weakness will find he has conquered.

I believe in victory. But I believe still more in fighting for it!

WHERE THE WEST IS STILL THE WEST—Down in Texas, near the Rio Grande, where the horned toads and sand turtles wend their sluggish way across the blistering sands, there remain many large ranches. The above photograph shows a glimpse at a roundup on one of them. (International.)

JOIN THE SWISS ARMY, SEE THE SKY—In the United States we send our troops to Texas for Winter maneuvers. Over in Switzerland the army hikes to the top of some of the highest peaks of the Alps for battle practice. Here we have members of a Swiss battalion of field artillery dragging one of their heavy guns up the steep mountain side. (Wide World.)

OH, MOLLY ACUSHLA!—'Tis Molly Malone of the movies. Molly is wearing a new gown. The gown isn't made yet, but the material is a yard wide, as will be seen by looking over the picture closely. All silk and a yard wide. That's Molly. (Wide World.)

HERE'S INDUSTRY—When J. L. Berrang's Connecticut farm burned two months ago he hitched his oxen to a "house-on-wheels" and started for the Coast. He has just reached New York. (Int.)

SOCIETY BUDS TURN VARIETY ENTERTAINERS—Julia Shanley and Marie J. Leary, who appeared in the Spence alumnae play, "Forty Winks," at the Hotel Plaza, N. Y., Monday night. The proceeds went to the society's home for babies. Just why the Misses Shanley and Leary dolled up as Scotch lassies is beyond us, unless it is the natural love of humans to be something we "ain't." —(c) U. & U.

OUR OWN MOVIE TEST—You've all seen this young man. Who is he? He's a movie star and has two sisters who are NOT after Mary Pickford's honors. That's it. F. E. Morrison of the Lloyd comedies. (Wide World.)

MOVIE FEAT—Or movie foot. Belongs to Gladys Walton and forms an interesting scene in a new photo play. Gladys says that as long as a camera can't talk she's not afraid of its one eye. (Wide World.)

OFF AGAIN, ON AGAIN, DRESSED AGAIN—On the left we have a modern young miss with thin hair. Perhaps it has been made thinner by constant rough treatment on the part of "permanent wave" artists. She looks rather lacking in parts, doesn't she? But see her five minutes later after Marie was deftly placed her "1921 evening coiffeur" wig in its proper place. A little powder, a little lipstick, a little eyebrow blacking, a band about the aforementioned wig and lo, milady emerges ready to captivate the hearts of the whole community. What a difference a few hairs make. —(c) U. & U.

WESLEY BARRY HELPS THE MOVIE MAN—The freckled-faced kid of the movies helped the International camera man photograph a daring airplane stunt from a blimp recently. The use of dirigibles in the making of motion pictures has opened the way to many new possibilities in motion picture technique. The high towers for "mob scenes" have outlived their usefulness with the blimp handy. (Int.)

ONLY A RAG DOLL—This serious looking painter is Ivasofsky, the painter, done "in rags" by Mme. Weikoff. On exhibition at the princess' rag doll show at Kent House, Knightsbridge. She has a whole set of them. (U. & U.)

SOAP AND ART—There's many a slip between the soap and the scrub brush. The soap slipped out of June Hall's hand one day in the family bathtub at Escanaba, Mich. Said soap struck the floor and made the pattern of a face. June has been making her living out of soap faces ever since. (c) U. & U.

BAD BREATH

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Get at the Cause and Remove It

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, act gently on the bowels and positively do the work.

People afflicted with bad breath find quick relief through Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The pleasant, sugar-coated tablets are taken for bad breath by all who know them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act gently but firmly on the bowels and liver, stimulating them to natural action, clearing the blood and gently purifying the entire system. They do that which dangerous calomel does without any of the bad after effects.

All the benefits of nasty, sickening, griping cathartics are derived from Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets without griping, pain or any disagreeable effects.

Dr. F. M. Edwards discovered the formula after seventeen years of practice among patients afflicted with bowel and liver complaint, with the attendant bad breath.

Olive Tablets are purely a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color. Take one or two every night for a week and note the effect. 15c and 30c.

MISS COX WANTS TO BE SERIOUS

Passing Show Player Sorry Her Height Is Bar to Acting in Legitimate

By FRED J. McISAAC.

"Meet the Queen of Sheba," said the press agent. "Shebe, this is a reporter."

Have you seen the Passing Show at the Shubert? Whatever else you remember, you havn't forgotten Hazell Cox, the refulgent blonde, who plays the Queen of Sheba and numerous other roles in the more or less bewildering entertainment.

Miss Cox is said to be the tallest girl in the show business since her sister, Ray Cox, acquired a husband and settled down to the horrors of married life in Providence. There may be other girls as tall as Miss Cox, but if there are they are not as blonde, and if by chance they should be as blonde they lack her graceful lines.

HAD JUST VAMPED KING.

She is a very dazzling person and she was just after vamping King Solomon in the show when they let me up and rang the bell.

"This is Mr. McIsaac," added the press agent.

"Oh, yes," said Miss Cox, showing by her manner that the name was Greek or Hebrew, as far as she was concerned.

"You even never heard of me, did you?" I suggested.

"Why, yes, indeed."

"Who am I?"

"Really," said Miss Cox with one of her bright smiles, I fess up. I don't know. You see I never read the papers."

"Don't you even read interviews about yourself?"

"Not if I can help it. The press agent usually writes them and I find I have said something horrid and I get mad and rebuke him, and then I don't get any more interviews that year. So I just don't read anything, and stand for murder."

LONGS FOR "LEGITIMATE."

"Well, of course, if you are not going to read this interview, I feel quite free and comfortable."

"Oh, but I am going to read this one," said Miss Cox bending her brow severely. "I can see you are a frivolous person. I am going to buy your paper, whichever it is, and read it every day until I find what you have said about me."

"Well, what shall I say about you?"

"I'm sure I don't know. I am not in the least interesting."

"I'll say you are tall and dignified."

"Oh, I wish I were not so tall. That's all anybody ever notices about me. I am sure I would be a great actress if I were only a foot shorter."

"How tall are you, Miss Cox?"

"Five feet ten."

"I've known lots of girls taller than you."

"Bet you haven't. Name one."

"The Statue of Liberty."

POOR SKATING PARTNERS!

"She's a pretty old girl, and statutes don't count. But, seriously, don't you know any author with a play written for a girl who shall be 'tall and divinely fair?' I should like to try my luck in the legitimate, but a heroine who is two or three times taller than the available leading men hasn't a chance in the world. Guess I'll have to stick to musical comedy."

"What are you doing to amuse yourself in Boston?"

"Attending the Symphony concerts and learning to skate."

"Which do you like the best?"

"Well, I find it easy to get escorts to the Symphony, but harder to find someone to teach me to skate. The last three I fell on, and they are in the hospital yet."

STRIKING PLUMBERS DO INDEPENDENT WORK

Providence, Jan. 12.—Journeyman plumbers here are still out on strike as the result of the reduction in the wage scale made by the Master Plumbers' Association. At a meeting of the Journeymen's Union it was agreed that plumbing would be done directly for the public at $1.15 per hour until the difficulty is settled. The organization will assume the responsibility and a committee has been appointed to solicit work.

It was reported that the organization has absolute proof by bills rendered that a number of master plumbers have not been charging $1.40 per hour for work and that the so-called decrease in prices announced by the masters which went into effect Monday with the reduction in wages is in fact an increase.

OLDEST MT. HOLYOKE GRAD, 91, CELEBRATES

Worcester, Jan. 12.—Mrs. Anne Susan Rice, oldest living graduate of Mt. Holyoke College, is celebrating her ninety-first birthday today at her home, Maple Hall, No. 19 King street. When Mrs. Rice attended Mt. Holyoke tuition for a year's course was $60, which included "board and schooling."

BUSINESS BRISK AT AUTO SHOW

Dealers Enthused by Heavy Demand for Cars at New York Exposition

New York, Jan. 12.—Enthused with the unqualified success of the twenty-first National Automobile Show, nearly one thousand automobile manufacturers and their representatives made merry at the Annual National Automobile Chamber of Commerce banquet at Hotel Commodore last night.

Whatever waves of optimism may have swept over them at the show at Grand Central Palace was highly intensified at the banquet and the reason is a simple one. The public is buying cars at the show. To put it mildly this year's Automobile Show has business.

Three days of the show has surprised New York dealers. They expected to have to go out and look for business. The show has proved to them that cars are in demand. The prediction that cars would be scarce next Spring is being borne out by the orders that are being taken.

It will be remembered at last year's automobile show orders were being taken and cars could not be delivered until July or August. According to the demand that has been shown at this year's auto show the same conditions are likely to occur.

At last night's dinner, Francis H. Sisson, vice-president of the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, told automobile men about the credit situation as regards the industry. He said frankly that bankers would finance business but only when conditions necessitated funds.

James Schemerhorn, publisher of the Detroit Times, spoke on present day conditions as viewed by a newspaper publisher.

PRACTICAL TRAINING FOR SIMMONS SENIORS

The business world of Boston is open for one and one-half days a week to all seniors at Simmons College registered in the School of Secretarial Studies whose rank is 80 or above. In this way business method theories are translated into practice and the girls given a chance to decide what particular line they wish to enter. Among the firms in which Simmons seniors are enrolled this semester are Babson Statistical Institute, Lockwood Greene Company, Boston Bookbinding Company, Farley, Harvey Company, Strout Real Estate Agency, Coffin & Burr, Harris, Forbes Company, Atlantic Monthly Company, E. H. Rollins, William Filene's Sons Company, A. G. Ferguson, insurance, and Yawman Erbe, hardware.

BIG DIAMOND CROSS IS STILL UNCLAIMED

A large solitaire diamond set in a gold cross, a piece of jewelry worth hundreds of dollars, still awaits a claimant. It was found a week ago on Tremont street by Eddie Cantor, star of "The Midnight Rounders." Mr. Cantor has advertised for the owner, but so far without success. The diamond is an extraordinarily large one, and the cross is so large that it has been placed in a safe deposit vault by Mr. Cantor, pending the appearance of the owner, who may have his or her property upon identification.

MAY LET WOMEN VOTE WITHOUT TELLING AGE

There will be a marked increase in the total women's vote in coming elections, if a bill filed by Representative Roland D. Sawyer of Ware meets with favor in the Legislature. He would amend the election laws so that a woman applying for registration need not give her age, but may simply state that she is more than twenty-one.

BOY BURGLARS GIVEN ADDITIONAL JAIL TERMS

Walter Arnold, eighteen years old, and his brother, Edwin, sixteen years old, who are now serving six months in the East Cambridge House of Correction, were given additional sentences by Judge Cox at the Cambridge Court for three counts of breaking and entering. Walter was given five years in the Concord Reformatory. Edwin was sentenced to an indefinite term at Concord.

CHESTERTON TO ATTEND "MIDNIGHT ROUNDERS"

Gilbert K. Chesterton, the English author now visiting Boston, has accepted an invitation to occupy a box at the Majestic Theatre for the performance of Eddie Cantor in "The Midnight Rounders," with Nan Halperin, this afternoon at the matinee. It will be the famous British humorist's first experience with a big Broadway production, and his comments should be of timely and extraordinary interest.

TAX EXEMPTION STATUS FIXED.

Circumstances of Each Individual Case Determine Application of Law

Thousands of letters passed in correspondence last year between the Bureau of Internal Revenue and persons claiming an exemption of $2,000 on their Federal income tax as head of a family.

Circumstances surrounding each individual case determine largely whether a person is entitled to such exemption. The fixing of his status decides, in many instances, whether his income is taxable or non-taxable. In either event, if his net income for 1920 was $1,000 or more if single, and $2,000 or more if married, he must file a return.

HEAD OF FAMILY.

A head of a family is defined by Treasury regulations as "a person who actually supports and maintains in one household one or more individuals who are closely connected with him by blood relationship, relationship by marriage or by adoption, or whose right to exercise family control and provide for these dependents is based upon some moral or legal obligations."

A married person living with husband or wife, in addition to the $2,000 exemption allowed such persons, cannot claim a $2,000 exemption as the head of a family, irrespective of the question of the support of others of the household.

SINGLE PERSONS.

A single person—the term including widows, widowers, and persons not living with wife or husband—is the head of a family if he is the sole support of one or more relatives living in the same house with him, and if he exercises control of household affairs.

The $1,000 additional exemption allowed a single person as the head of a family cannot be divided between two members of a household. A division of responsibility for "control of household affairs" excludes both parties from the claim.

Whether a person who does not continuously live in the same house with dependent relatives is entitled to the $2,000 exemption depends upon the character of the separation.

If a parent is absent on business part of the year, or a child or other dependent away at school or on a visit, the common home being maintained, the exemption applies.

EXEMPTION APPLIES.

If a parent is compelled to maintain his dependent children with relatives or in a boarding house, the exemption may still apply. If, however, the dependent continuously and without necessity makes his home elsewhere than with his benefactor, the latter is not the head of family, irrespective of the question of support.

A taxpayer may not be the head of a family and still be allowed an exemption of $200 for each person dependent upon him for chief support if such person is under eighteen years of age or incapable of self-support because mentally or physically defective. The words "physically defective" refer not only to cripples, but to persons defective because of old age or ill health.

Neither residence, relationship, nor legal dependency are factors in determining the right of the taxpayer to such exemption. To establish his claim, the taxpayer must have contributed during the year more than one-half of the sum needed for the dependent's support.

ALLOWABLE EXEMPTIONS.

The following are concrete examples of circumstances which govern the exemptions allowed the head of a family and for dependents:

A son who has left home sends his mother more than half the sum required for her support. He is allowed an exemption of $200, unless the mother is able to support herself, in which case the contribution is regarded as a gift.

A son living at home supports an invalid mother in the same household. He is allowed a deduction of $2,000 as the head of a family, plus an additional $200 for his dependent, who is physically incapacitated. (It should be noted that the $200 additional exemption for dependents does not apply to husband or wife, even though either one has become a total burden upon the other).

A single man lives with and supports a mother fifty years of age and two sisters nineteen and twenty-one years of age, all in good health. His exemption is $2,000 as head of family. Since his mother and sisters are neither under eighteen years of age nor mentally or physically incapacitated, he cannot claim an additional exemption for dependents.

A widower is the entire support of a child under eighteen years of age, but otherwise neglects it. His exemption is $1,200. He is not the head of a family, and is entitled only to the $200 for a dependent.

ENTRE NOUS CLUB TO HOLD ANNUAL DANCE

This evening the annual dance of the Entre Nous Club will be held at the Chateau Dansant on Huntington avenue and promises to be one of the greatest social events of the season. The committee in charge has promised many pleasant novelty dances, among which will be the spot dance, the lemon dance and other feature dances. Among those on the committee are Miss Eunice Fitzgerald and Beatrice Elliott.

N. Y. CENTRAL ASKS FOR U. S. LOAN OF $16,770,337

Washington, Jan. 12.—The New York Central Railroad Company has asked the Interstate Commerce Commission for a government loan amounting to $16,770,337 for fifteen years to be used for these purposes: Initial payment on equipment trust, miscellaneous new equipment and to provide for additional transportation facilities.

WORCESTER CHAMBER FOR DAYLIGHT SAVING

Worcester, Jan. 12.—Worcester Chamber of Commerce today went on record in favor of daylight saving for five months of the year. Douglas P. Cook, vice-president of the Boston Pressed Metal Company, was named a director of the Massachusetts Chamber of Commerce from the Worcester chamber. The chamber went on record in favor of an increase in schoolhouses.

12-INCH GUNS ON NEW 'SUBS'

Britain Springs Surprise on World With Three Powerful Under-Sea Boats

Washington, Jan. 12.—Official reports to the Navy Department show that Great Britain already has built three submarines which carry 12-inch guns.

This fact, suddenly ascertained, is regarded by officials as an extremely important increase of the British navy.

The new British warship is of 1,500 tons burden. The heaviest United States submarine tonnage is about 2,100, but so far the guns on these best types are to be only from five to seven-inch calibre.

Charge That Railroad Graft Is Reaching a Thousand Million Dollars

It Would Add from $150 to $300 Yearly to Every Family's Cost of Living. Keep Your Eye on Congress!

Watch the railroad situation which will develop next week in Washington. It is grave, but interesting. It involves your cost of living.

It may cost you from three to six thousand million dollars a year in what you buy, unless you keep your eye on what is going on in Washington before Congress and the Interstate Commerce Commission during the next week.

One thousand million dollars increase in railroad expenses means a thousand million dollars added to railroad freight and passenger fares. A thousand million dollars added to railroad freight rates and passenger fares means from three to six thousand million dollars added to the cost of living in this country. That means an increase in the cost of living to every family in the United States from one hundred and fifty to three hundred dollars every year.

Do you not think that it is worth a little of your time to save yourself from the possibility of being obliged to carry this added burden in the cost of living?

If you are interested in your cost of living then read what this newspaper has to say about the railroad situation in Washington.

Interstate Commerce Asked to Investigate Railroad Graft

W. Jett Lauck is probably the nation's greatest expert on statistics and is so far uncontrolled by the big special interests. He was secretary of the important War Labor Board, of which ex-President Taft and Frank P. Walsh were joint chairmen. Mr. Lauck has filed a petition with the Interstate Commerce Commission, charging the railroads with gross fraud under the Esch-Cummins law.

The so-called Esch-Cummins law is the law under which Congress returned the railroads of the United States to the control of their old private managers and Wall street, from whom the government was obliged to take the railroads during the war, because, under this private management, the railroads had utterly failed to contribute their part to the work of winning the war.

Why the Government Had to Take the Railroads

We have frequently told the story, and it will bear frequent repeating. Our government had entered into an agreement with the governments of France, Great Britain and Italy to supply these governments and our own soldiers as fast as they arrived in France with a certain definite amount of grain. But in the late Fall of 1917 the Prime Ministers of Great Britain, France and Italy instructed their ambassadors at Washington to inform our government that the American grain was not coming to France as fast as we agreed to send it, and that in consequence the French troops had suffered one cut in the amount of their rations and the Italian troops had suffered two cuts, and that mutiny would follow a further reduction in rations. These ambassadors were also instructed to point out to our government that the fault lay with our railroads, for the farmers had responded splendidly to the call for increased production of grain and the Western fields fairly teemed with harvest, and the great elevators and warehouses were choking with the grain, while the ships lay at anchor in the Eastern harbors with empty holds waiting for grain that never came, because railroad inefficiency under private management was incapable of transporting it to the harbors with sufficient rapidity.

The government immediately investigated, found the situation to be as represented and took the management of the railroads away from its private managers and proceeded to manage them, just as the government manages the army and the navy and other government functions. Then the grain began to pour into the holds of the ships, and in six weeks we had made up our enormous arrears and our railroads were doing their share of the great war work.

Now when the war is over the bankers and the old managers wanted the railroads back to be their playthings and the instruments of their speculations and graft and profit once more. To that end they organized the greatest lobby ever seen in the history of the country, and attained their object by the so-called Esch-Cummins law, which not only returned to them the railroads which they had forfeited by their incompetence, but killed the fatted calf for these prodigals by gifts which have already cost the American people within one year of the passage of the law an increase in the cost of living for each family in the United States of more than $200 a year.

To have returned the railroads to these old private managers and bankers to plunder the American people in the old-fashioned ways would have been a crime enough, but to return it to them with gifts, the cost of which to the American people is only just now beginning to be disclosed, makes it one of the most evil laws Congress ever passed.

What Lauck Charges

Almost every day brings forth some new discovery of evil in this law. The latest developments are involved in the recent contracts which the private managers have made with private repair companies for the repair of the locomotives and of the cars, according to Mr. Lauck's charges, which are briefly these:

> The railroads have always maintained their own repair shops and have kept the accounts of the average costs of repairing engines and cars. This average cost was between $4,000 and $5,000 for a locomotive. But under the new contracts which the private managers, according to Mr. Lauck, have made since the Esch-Cummins law went into effect, the railroad repair shops upon the big railroads of Class 1, those railroads affiliated with a great New York banking house and a banking group of about seven New York banks, have abandoned their own repair shops and have made contracts with private repair companies, and in some cases have actually organized new repair companies for the purpose of making these repairs.
>
> The repairs under the new deal are costing the railroads from four to five times as much as the repairs cost in their own shops. Thus a locomotive which cost the railroad to repair in its own shop from $4,000 to $5,000 cost under this new scheme about $20,000. This means an annual increase in the cost of operating our railroads in this instance of over five hundred million dollars a year. But it is charged that the same scheme is being carried out with respect to cars, and that the annual loss to the railroads in repairs on the cars alone will be over two hundred and fifty million dollars a year. This would make nearly one thousand million dollars a year, taking into consideration all the other repairs.

The Public Pays

Who pays the bill under such circumstances? The American people, of course. The Esch-Cummins law puts the expense on the American people. The Esch-Cummins law provides that the stockholders of the railroads shall have six and one-half per cent. dividends, and the American people shall pay an increasing sum each year until that six and one-half per cent. is paid, and as the railroad expenses increase, the American people must pay the railroads a greater sum of money to keep on paying those six and one-half per cent. dividends. Thus if the cost of operating the railroads is increased by one thousand million dollars a year on account of the increased cost of repairing engines and cars, the American people must pay the railroads one thousand million dollars more money in order to pay the dividends of six and one-half per cent. But it always costs from three to six times as much in the price of goods to the people as the increase in railroad rates.

Wall Street Control of Railroads

Railroads are controlled by their boards of directors, who elect the president and executive officers. The president and executive officers are nothing but the lackeys of the directors, especially the directors who represent the banks which make the loans to the railroads and control the proxies that elect. These six or seven New York banks, according to Mr. Lauck, control 270 of the directors of these railroads which are declared to have entered into this repair scheme. The same banking group controls at least fifty-four directorships of the leading private companies which make railroad repairs and supply railroads with their equipment.

Old-Fashioned Graft

Now the American has often called attention to the fact that one of the phases of railroad graft was in the supplying of equipment to railroads by private companies. This is the kind of graft for which any Mayor, alderman, legislator or other public official would go to jail. It has been notorious ever since the Civil War. In President Wilson's first administration for the first time a feeble attempt was made to correct it by a provision of the so-called Clayton act.

This law provided that no railroad should make a contract with any company where the interest between the officers of the railroad and the other contracting company was SUBSTANTIAL. We say that this was a feeble attempt on account of the presence of the weasel word "substantial." There is no need of there being ANY identity of interests between the two contracting parties. However, it was better than nothing, and has proved some embarrassment to the railroads bent on common dishonesty, for they are now attempting to have the time in which that prohibition goes into effect extended. They did not dare ask for its repeal. They only ask to have it extended until, presumably, the time for the locking of the barn door gets too late, the horse already having been stolen. So a bill extending the time passed through the House of Representatives and the Senate, but it was fortunately vetoed by the President either in one of those flashes of his old spirit of progressiveness or in pride concerning one of the good laws of his administration, which would have been emasculated by the passing of this bill.

The Railroad Lobby at Work

But one of the characteristics of the great exploiting interests of this country is that they are never discouraged. While they are feeling out the possibility of putting this law over the President's veto, they are stealthily advancing another bill by Senator Frelinghuysen, which seeks to utilize the weasel word "substantial" in the Clayton act. This bill re-enacts the prohibition of the Clayton act of railroad officials dealing with themselves in these repair and equipment contracts, but requires the Interstate Commerce Commission to decide what constitutes "substantial interest," and then by the legerdemain of language, these contracts, already consummated, in fact, but which are prohibited and, therefore, are now illegal under the present law, are legalized.

Congressmen Ignorant, Not Bad

Our readers ought not to jump to the conclusion that every member of Congress who voted for this evil Esch-Cummins law knew that he was voting for a bad law. On the contrary, it is more than likely that a vast majority of them thought that it was a good law, or at least the best that could be obtained under the circumstances.

This is the pity and danger of the whole situation. Our form of government is not capable of coping with the organized plunderbund of this country while that plunderbund remains in control of the public utilities like the railroads, the telegraph and telephone companies. Our Congressmen know nothing about railroad history, railroad finance or anything else which has anything to do with the decision of the important questions relating to our railroads. With the control of the newspapers by the great banking and allied interests our Congressmen are fed by the propaganda of those who would plunder the railroads and the public alike. With a great lobby at Washington presenting all kinds of arguments and sending all kinds of citizens to Congressmen urging this and that in favor of railroad schemes, and with nobody competent to speak for the public side and with members of Congress having no knowledge themselves, it is practically impossible and always will be for Congress to protect the public interest against these organized and unscrupulous railroad harpies. This is one of the good reasons why public ownership and operation of the railroads must come.

Ignorance No Longer Excusable

But now time is revealing the boldness of this Esch-Cummins law and the excuse of ignorance can no longer be pleaded by members of Congress when they are dealing with it again, or when they are dealing with any of its indirect results. Any member of Congress who does anything to facilitate any schemes to load on the American people any increase in cost of railroad operation ought to have a very short political career.

If Mr. Lauck's charges are correct, then this is a typical story of huge graft under private management of the railroads. We know that the railroads during the first six months after they were returned to private management lost more money than during the two-and-one-half years of government management and government management was during the war!
